Asia Is Boiling
What Promises?
A Fire Worshipper
Heavier Boys and Girls

The week opens with plenty of exciting news.

The Allies announce that they may order Turkey to "get out of Europe," which would mean making of Constantinople, the gate that shuts Russia out of the Mediterranean, a great neutral city. England, perhaps, would be too modest to take the city, and nobody else could be trusted with it.

But while England contemplates telling the Turkish remnant from Asia to "get out of Europe," there is the Asia terrific agitation, boiling hatred against the Allies, religious and race war flaming up in a hundred places. Europe may soon have an Asiatic problem to deal with more important and difficult than driving the Turk from Constantinople.

It is said that Lenin and his Bolshevik assistants are stirring up the Asiatic trouble, to persuade the Allies that it would be wise to let Russia alone.

If that be true, Lenin, stirring Asiatics against Europe, is doing what the British did a little more than a hundred years ago, sending North American Indians against the white American colonists.

The Sunday talk between President Wilson and Governor Cox, and their little statements are, to Americans, most important news.

On the peace league Mr. Cox says:

"What he (Wilson) promised I shall, if elected, endeavor with all my strength to give."

The people will be more than ever anxious to know just exactly WHAT PRESIDENT WILSON PROMISED.

Legally and technically, of course, he could not PROMISE ANYTHING. He knew that he had no power to make any treaty or promise without the Senate's consent and approval.

But these are strange days. Constitutional limits on executive authority grow feeble in war.

Zoroaster, head and founder of the so-called "fire worshippers," was a philosopher, a noble man, lover of truth and justice. "He might justly be compared with Confucius or the best of the old Greek philosophers.

In New England a lady, not yet caught, has been setting fire to houses. She writes to the police saying she does this because she is a priestess of the "fire worshippers."

You wonder that it is possible for Zoroaster's lofty philosophy to be so lightly perverted, but you needn't wonder. Setting fire to houses by a follower of Zoroaster, who despised lawlessness and superstition, is not worse than wearing out children in mines or mills by one calling himself a follower of Christ, who said:

"But who so shall offend one of these little ones which believe in Me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea."—St. Matthew xviii, 6.

The fire worshipper lady, in all probability, is insane. That excuses her. No such excuse for the exploiter of child labor.

When your child comes from public school after an exciting basketball game, or your daughter talks about the "beautiful new folk-dance we are learning," don't think the children are wasting their time and ought to be learning to spell "Phthisic." Thanks to exercise in public schools and colleges, we are creating a better, healthier race of men and women.

College men today are two inches taller and nine pounds heavier than they were thirty years ago. Girls are one inch taller and ten pounds heavier.

What has happened inside the young people's skulls, whether deepening convolutions show improvement there, we do not know. Autopsies will tell us a few years from now.

"Kill foxes whenever you can," says a special game protector. Good advice. "The fox, cunning, vicious, bloodthirsty, kills for the love of killing. The warm blood of victims is its fountain of youth."

So far, so good. The gentleman goes on: "Every fox shot or caught in a trap means just so many more grouse, pheasants and rabbits." to say nothing about the value of the fur. Fewer foxes, more sport, more game, MORE FUN."

Some men are interested in their own front and back yards. Some in their own city. Some in their own country. Nearly all limit their interest to this earth. The few interested in the outside universe will read with interest that observing the planet Mars may enable us to foretell with some accuracy the weather for next Winter.

Our neighbor Mars, tens of millions of miles farther from the sun than our earth, shows clearly what amount of heat the sun is sending out and to what extent sun spots or other troubles affect our great flaming central heat.

At the poles of Mars great ice caps form. The surface covered by ice increases in Winter, spreading down toward the equator. By studying those Martian ice caps in Summer we can form some opinion as to the Winter we shall have and how much coal we should order. Thus astronomy can actually be "useful." That is what practical man requires.

BIG RACE IS DELAYED BY CALM

Breeze Too Light When Shamrock and Resolute Reach the Start

Sandy Hook, N. Y., July 20.—The Shamrock IV. and Resolute arrived at the starting line of their race course shortly before noon. The rival yachts rode the waves majestically in the light breeze, which caused a postponement of the start of the contest until later in the day.

The breeze, however, finally speeded up to five knots. As it was predicted by the weather sharps that the breeze would become even stronger as the day progressed, those in charge of the international classic believed it would be possible to finish the race within the time limit of six hours.

Sir Thomas Lipton was confident his yacht will score another victory today. The supporters of the Resolute, however, were just as sure the American yacht would gain the honors.

In the racing to date the Resolute has shown to better advantage than its rival. If it were not for a series of unfortunate circumstances the American yacht would today have two victories to its credit.

At 9 o'clock weather conditions near the Ambrose lightship, the

GIRL, 17, IS KIDNAPED IN AUTO

East Boston Young Woman Vanishes While Trying to Escape from Six

A bold daylight kidnaping came to light in East Boston today when police investigated the absence of seventeen-year-old Florence Rush, missing from her home at No. 62 Eagle street since Sunday night.

When last seen the girl was struggling to escape from an automobile speeding down Revere Beach boulevard.

There were six young men in the car, according to a girl chum who escaped and investigation turned today to Riverside, Newburyport, where it is suspected the men have a camp.

Mrs. Sarah Rush, mother of the missing girl, and a widow of three months, is prostrated.

Most of the information concerning the kidnaping was furnished the police by Miss Gertrude Smith of No. 345 Meridian street, East Boston.

Miss Smith was with the Rush girl during the train ride Sunday, when they were offered a ride by the six young men. Both got in, but the Smith girl fought her way out of the car when one of the men asked them to accompany him to his camp at Riverside and became otherwise objectionable.

Miss Smith was obliged to strike and bite to get free, and today bore marks of her experience. She said she would not positively state that the younger girl was fighting as the car sped away, but lounges along the boulevard, who saw the car said she was.

Miss Rush worked at a Cambridge factory. She is 5 feet 1inch in height, weighs 125 pounds and wore a blue silk dress with plaited skirt, a scarf, open work stockings, brown pumps and no hat.

He was a trustee of Dartmouth College. Mr. Kimball was closely associated in many business enterprises with the late Theodore N. Vail.

PAPER SHORTAGE HURTS "PLATE" PUBLICATIONS

Omaha, Neb., July 20.—Paper shortage is forcing country papers in this part of the West to dispense with the patent plate service. Today paper is so hard to get and so high that they do not want the service, as they need the space for their own advertising. This is not all local advertising or any means—it is foreign advertising for cigarettes, cigars and scores of other nationally advertised products.

DILLON IS ACCUSED AS THIEF

Has Been at Nantasket for Six Weeks, According to His Attorney

John F. Dillon, more commonly known as "Chick," "pal" of Herman L. Barney on the night Patrolman Charles E. Deininger was shot and killed in Chelsea, was arrested today on an indictment charging participation in the theft of an automobile.

Dillon was arrested as he stepped off a Nantasket steamship by Captain Connors of Station 1, Cambridge. He was taken to Cambridge, where bail was offered and plans made for securing his release.

Before that formality was gone through with, however, he had an interview with Assistant District Attorney George Stanley Hayes, who is conducting the inquiry into the automobile stealing industry.

Dillon's arrest was the second made since the statement of Herman L. Barney last week. Last night John J. Hurt, a former member of the Boston police department and hero of the "boat indictment" episode, was arrested on a capias issued by a justice in Middlesex County.

More than once during his recent recital to District Attorney Tuttle Barney referred to Hart. His references to Dillon were few and far between and were based solely on their dealings which are already known as a result of the murder trial.

Neither of the two men who were

Japanese Beauty Is Believed a Suicide

New York, July 20.—A black handbag, a hat and a few cards beside the lake in Central Park.

On the cards, "Yuki Onda, Washington, D. C."

These are believed by the police to spell the death by suicide of a black-haired Oriental beauty. For hours they have dredged the little lake, but without success.

The note, addressed to "Pierre Washing, D. C., General Delivery," is believed to furnish the motive for the little Japanese taking her own life. It expressed sorrow that she had accepted the attentions of an American suitor. It told of a talk with a friend in the Japanese Navy which had showed her her mistake.

Miss Onda, if such is her real name, registered at the hotel on Saturday. Sunday evening she left supposedly for a walk, after remarking to one of the clerks that she was not feeling well.

Two hours later, George Wilde, a sailor, heard a splash near the north end of the Central Park lake—and there, beneath the trees, they found the hat, the bag and the calling cards.

50,000 Arrests in U. S. Under 'Dry' Law

Washington, July 20.—One out of approximately every 2,000 persons in the country has been caught in some violation of the dry law, according to the first annual report of John F. Kramer, Federal prohibition commissioner, which is to be issued soon.

This report is expected to show that 50,000 is a fair estimate of the number of persons who have been arrested since constitutional prohibition went into effect January 16.

IRISH POLICE RAID TUAM

Several Buildings Burned During Battle; Cork Rioting Suppressed

By International News Service.

Dublin, July 20.—In reprisal for the ambushing and killing of two policemen, the Royal Irish Constabulary raided the town of Tuam, in County Galway, early today, according to reports received here. The raid is said to have been followed by a battle, during which several buildings were burned.

A shooting affray occurred at Ballycommerlic, but the damage was not serious. Fifteen men were accused of shooting up the town.

Quiet has been restored at Cork following the outbreak of flashing in which many persons were wounded, according to advices from that city today.

The city shows evidence of the intensity of the firing. The windows in Cork City Hall are broken and the clock in the belfry is riddled with bullets. A military curfew order will go into effect at Cork tomorrow prohibiting citizens from all three mile radius of the city between the hours of 10 p. m. and 5 a. m.

The judges of the Assizes at Cork have appealed for the formation of a League of Law. The appeal says: "If social order is to be restored the people will have to come to their own rescue."

A mystery has developed as to the origin of the false report printed in Dublin and London that Sinn Feiners bombed two former constabulary recently British soldiers at Cork Monday, when several casualties were alleged to have been inflicted. The official account of the disturbances at Cork on Sunday night says that only 148 rounds were fired by the military.

Officials allege that militant motor cars and lorries were fired upon by civilians before the soldiers began to shoot. The whole situation in Ireland today is so confused that it cannot be foretold with any degree of accuracy where and when the next outbreak will occur nor what form it might take.

MORMON OFFICERS HELD AS SUGAR PROFITEERS

Salt Lake City, July 20.—Charged with profiteering in sugar, the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company, was bound over for trial here. Charles W. Nibly, presiding bishop of the Latter Day Saints, is the principal stockholder, and Heber J. Grant, president of the church, is also the president of the sugar corporation. It is alleged that the company sold sugar for more than 23 cents which cost less than 9½ cents to refine.

GERMAN BARK STILL FLIES IMPERIAL COLORS

Philadelphia, July 20.—Although technically still an enemy craft, the German bark Reihenstieg, loading oil here, boldly flies the merchant flag of the old Imperial German government from her masthead.

"No German skipper worthy of the name will hoist the ... black and gold of the new Nek list government," said Captain Wilhelm Westphal.

STRIKE DANGER IS AVERTED

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE.

Chicago, July 20.—Wage increases totalling $600,000,000 per year were granted to the 1,800,000 railroad employes of the United States in the decision of the Federal Labor Board on the recent demands of the "Big Four" brotherhoods and associated crafts.

While the award was not entirely satisfactory to the brotherhoods, it was understood that it was sufficiently large to be accepted tentatively by their chiefs and submitted to a referendum of the men.

Their decision to await the action of the individual unions ended the possibility of an immediate strike.

E. C. Winer received the ruling of the labor board for the railroad corporations. He said that the roads would accept and abide by the award.

M. M. Jewell was present to represent the union brotherhoods. He made no comment on the award but indicated that it would be submitted to a referendum.

Men acquainted with the situation see reason to hope that the labor board's finding would be accepted in toto by the men, though as the decision of the leaders to submit the awards to referendum followed a special conciliation of the wage increases based on advance information. Their action in accepting the board's decision was tentatively, it was said,

LONG OUT AGAIN FOR GOVERNOR

Nomination Papers Circulated by Barry; Captain Paul H. Hines First to Sign

Richard H. Long of Framingham, Democratic candidate for Governor last year, announced today that he would again be a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Mr. Long stated that he had allowed his name to be used after considerable urging on the part of members of the Democratic State Committee.

The first papers for Mr. Long were circulated by former Lieutenant Governor Edward P. Barry, and the first signature was that of Captain Paul H. Hines, formerly of the 26th Division, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Representative from Ward 10, South Boston. Martin T. Hall of Natick will probably be Mr. Long's campaign manager again.

LAWYER LED TO DEATH BY LOVE

New York Coroner in Parsons' Case Reports Suicide—Had $30,000 Yearly Income

Harrison, N. Y., July 20.—Despondency over a love affair was held responsible for the suicide of Henry Humphrey Parsons, found dead in a bath tub from a gunshot wound, in a decision rendered by Coroner John Stella of Westchester County.

Explaining that he had failed to find any definite evidence of a love affair of Parsons which might have caused the act, the coroner declared his conclusion was wholly hypothetical.

At the time Parsons was found dead in a tub in the home of his aunt, Mrs. Jefferson Hogan at Purchase, N. Y., on June 17, his income was $30,000 a year and he had no financial worries.

He was with the law firm of Root, Clark, Buckner and Ho6es, and had attained considerable success before the bar.

The coroner, in his verdict, laid stress on the fact that the man's sister committed suicide in 1898.

Bury War Martyr from Revere City Hall

Funeral services were held from Revere City Hall today for Joseph F. Penachio, who died in France. His body was the first of any Revere soldier to be transported overseas.

Civic and church dignitaries of Revere and world war veterans united to do honor to Penachio's memory.

A detail from Revere Post of the American Legion and another from the veterans of the 26th Field Artillery, with which unit he served, formed a guard of honor, and conducted the Legion ritual at the grave in Holy Cross cemetery, Malden.

The funeral procession moved from the City Hall to St. Anthony's Church, where a solemn high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Ernest Rovar, pastor. Rev. Frank Linetti was deacon, and Rev. James Moriarty subdeacon.

David Lynch was organist. Pallbearers were Mrs. M. J. Shaw and Miss Philomena Nuttie.

The body lay in state all night in the City Hall auditorium, draped in the American flag. A guard of honor, composed of world war veterans, was on duty.

Penachio formerly lived at No. 180 Mountain avenue, Revere.

TWO BOATS FOR EAST BOSTON

Council's Action Stirs Question of Sufficient Ferry Capacity for Fire Protection

Whether two new ferryboats will afford sufficient facilities for the transportation of fire apparatus to East Boston in case of a conflagration is to be put up to Fire Commissioner Murphy, through the Mayor, by the City Council.

The order went through on a 6 to 3 vote. President Moriarty and Councillor Donoghue scenting it as a scheme to eliminate a third ferryboat and make use of an appropriation of $400,000 as proposed by Mayor Peters, voted against it. Other members of the Council, declaring they were not committing themselves to the Mayor's plan in seeking this information, pushed the order through.

Public Works Commissioner Sullivan and Deputy Commissioner John E. Carty, head of the ferry service, are in New York today to see what type of ferryboat is in use in that city. They will be gone five days visiting New Jersey and Philadelphia, and are expected to bring back valuable information about ferry construction which will be applied in the building of the new boats.

Filene's Automatic Bargain BASEMENT

written by one finger of the left hand of an invalid

Among the letters and poems and kicks last week was a poem from Caryville, Mass., called a "Romance Renewed."

It was "typed with one finger of the left hand by an invalid who admires the Filene Basement and who profits by it by proxy though she has never entered it," so she wrote at the bottom.

It was about a fellow and girl who sat on a new green park bench and the paint stuck them there so that they came to Filene's Basement to get a new outfit.

It was a good fun reading it, but the interesting thing was that physical deficiency couldn't stop the writer from taking advantage of Filene Basement bargains.

PICK SEVEN JURORS TO DECIDE FATE OF ALLEGED WIFE SLAYER

PETTIBONE AFFECTED AT TRIAL

Appears Ill at Ease While Process of Picking Jurors Goes On

Manchester, Vt., July 20.—The process of drawing the jury to try Byron Madison Pettibone for the murder, by poisoning, of his wife, Lyda Bond Pettibone, in Bennington, last April, was continued today.

At the opening of the court seven jurors had been tentatively chosen, although, under the legal system peculiar to this State, none of these men may be called upon to pass on the guilt or innocence of the accused man. As yet neither the prosecution nor the defense has exercised its right of challenge.

Under the Vermont system the jury box is filled by twelve jurors drawn from the larger panel and they are then examined individually. If not excused by the court, the prospective juror takes his seat but is subject to peremptory challenge, of which the defence and State have six each.

NEATLY DRESSED IN SERGE.

Eight of the fifteen jurors examined have been excused by the court, mostly as a result of their admissions that they had formed an opinion which could not be shaken even in face of strong evidence to the contrary.

The seven jurors that are eligible for the jury box and subject to challenge are: Ernest Hebb, farmer, Sunset; Leo A. Slade, farmer, Winhall; William J. Young, factory worker, Shaftesbury; Charles Gardner, farmer, Pownal; William L. Lundergan, farmer, Bennington; Lafayette Flamme, woodsman, Bennington; Myron Cole, merchant, Arlington.

Dressed in a neat serge suit, Pettibone, the accused undertaker's assistant, was ill at ease as the jurors, one after the other, answered readily that if they were chosen they would vote to send the prisoner to the electric chair if the evidence proves his guilt.

The alleged self-confessed wife murderer presented a totally different figure to the man that sat at the preliminary hearing in the Bennington court, seemingly unmindful of the seriousness of the charges edger over his head.

He seemed now to realize his plight. He looked neither to the right nor left as he was brought into the crowded courtroom in the custody of Sheriff Perry Gardner. He was taken directly to the seat within the rail, beside the three attorneys who are making the fight to save their client from death in the electric chair.

Several times during the examination of the prospective jurymen he sank his head and closed his eyes. This was especially true when talesmen whom he knew were being questioned. He never once lifted his head and he reddened noticeably when Charles Gardner, a Pownal farmer, stated that he and Pettibone had been boys together at school.

An hour before the opening of court today several hundred persons, wealthy Summer vacationists and natives, had surrounded the small county house, hoping for admission into the room in which the most sensational murder trial that Vermont has seen for years is being staged. When court was opened there was a rush for the five rows of seats. Others, unable to gain admission, filled the short corridor leading from the street while a majority of the throng contented themselves with a glimpse of the now famous alleged murder, as he was brought from the small jail beneath the court house, and along the street to the front entrance.

Pettibone seemed in a daze as he walked into the courthouse at the side of the sheriff.

Helen Irene Guillow, the trained nurse, a few years younger than the accused man, for whose love the State claims he murdered his wife, was absent from court. On the advice of the prosecuting attorney she is remaining away from the trial until she is called as a witness.

HYDE PARK EAGER FOR RESUMPTION OF CARS

Residents of Hyde Park are looking forward to a speedy resumption of good service at a single rate of fare following the message by the city council of an appropriation of $30,000 to put the readbed of the Eastern Massachusetts in shape prior to the taking over of this line by the Boston Elevated.

This "loan" is to be repaid to the city if there is sufficient money resulting from operation of this road at the times the "El" takes it over. The cost of repairs to the readbed is expected to be about $50,000.

BOYS TELL OF GIRL'S FIGHT

Finding of Body Following Quarrel With Man Strengthens Murder Theory

New York, July 20.—Whether an unidentified girl who was found dead with her skull fractured in an areaway, between No. 49 Rutgers street and No. 127 Monroe street, met her end through murder, suicide or accident is a question upon which official opinion was divided today.

The murder theory has been strengthened by the testimony of two boys who saw a girl answering the description of the unknown struggling and fighting with a well dressed man in Seward Park.

The story of the boys was as follows:

"We saw the man grab the girl and tear her furs off. She cried and he told her not to worry, as he would get her a more expensive fur. The girl appealed to a policeman. The policeman told us afterward he was not going to bother with them. The girl ran into the boys' playground and told us she was afraid and asked us the quickest way to get home to Newark.

"While she was talking to us the man, with another man, came running up after her. We asked the first man why he was fighting the girl and he told us it was none of our business. The girl ran from him toward Rutgers street and he chased her. She ran into a doorway. The man followed and so did we. She was in the hallway and he pushed her down two or three steps into the yard.

"A woman on the stairs told the man to come up there with the girl until the crowd went away. The other man had disappeared. The man shoved the girl upstairs, and that was the last we saw of them."

The boy's description of her wearing apparel fits that of the dead girl's clothing.

The girl had not purse, card, paper, nor anything that might aid in identifying her, except, perhaps, an odd comb in her hair. This is of a very peculiar design and is believed to be valuable.

TURKS DESTROY 1,500 IN FIRE

London, July 20.—Fifteen hundred Christians are said to have perished when Turkish nationalists set fire to a Greek church at Fouladjik, according to a Constantinople dispatch to the Daily Express today quoting the Greek Patriarchate in the Turkish capital.

The Turkish Nationalists were said to have herded a majority of the Christian population of Fouladjik into the Greek church and then applied the torch.

4 BATTLE ZONES IN OLD TURKEY

Soviet Army Invades Armenia as Fighting Rages on Other Fronts

Paris, July 20.—Four separate theatres of war exist today within the borders of the old Turkish empire as a result of the invasion of Armenia by the Eleventh Soviet army.

The other three zones of hostility are Anatolia, where the Greeks are driving back the Turkish Nationalists; Syria, where the Arab forces of King Feisal are opposing the French, and Thrace, where the Turks are carrying on guerrilla warfare against the Greeks.

A British army assisted by warships is protecting Constantinople and the eastern shores of the Sea of Marmora. Advices from the East indicate that the Russian Soviet army which has crossed into Armenia near the Aras River may attempt to form a junction with Mustapha Kemal Pasha's Turkish Nationalist army.

Modern Ruth Steadfast to Husband, a Leper

New York, July 20.—'And Ruth said: 'Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee; for whither thou goest I will go; and where thou lodgest I will lodge; thy people shall be my people.'"—Ruth 1-16.

A motherly-looking woman of Spain, with gray hair about her temples, voiced the old but ever new philosophy of Ruth when she won her fight to follow her husband—a leper.

The woman was Senora Eliza Garcillian. Her husband is Cirisco Garcillian.

Sunday Senora Eliza called upon Immigration Commissioner Wallis at Ellis Island, where both have been detained and entreated a great favor. She explained that it was the thirtieth anniversary of their marriage. Might she see her husband? Dangerous? She smiled. Her plea was granted.

She is sixty years; her husband fifty-three. Nearly all day long she sat there, old eyes gazing fondly into old eyes, expressing sympathy and perfect trust.

A board of inquiry heard the case. Senora Eliza faced the board without a trace of embarrassment and told in simple story and her simple wishes. She said:

"For thirty years we have lived the same life. I will not desert him now. Wherever they send him, there I will go also. I want to be with him to the end."

Her wish was granted. On orders from Washington the privilege has been granted both to travel together, either back to Mexico, from whence they came, or to native Spain.

Senor Garcillian was formerly engaged in business in this city, with four partners. He and his wife resided in one of the leading hotels of the Chelsea district.

PLOT TO ESCAPE NEW RENT LAWS

Back Bay Tenants Forced to Sign Leases Permitting 40 P. C. Rent Increase

An ingenious attempt to nullify the effect of the law passed by this year's Legislature permitting a rent increase of only 25 per cent., is being made in Boston landlords controlling large apartment houses. This, attempt to offset the new law was revealed through complaints made by tenants of the Sudbury Real Estate Trust to the Mayor's Rent and Housing Committee. This company owns twenty-six houses on Gainsboro and Hemenway streets, Back Bay, containing 164 apartments.

Having been informed that many of the tenants planned to sign leases at increased rentals of 40 per cent. and not the 25 per cent. increase over what they paid last year, Frederick G. Woodruff, agent of the company, is demanding that the tenants sign affidavits that the new rents are "just and reasonable" and that they will pay. In this manner the trustee of the property, Attorney Joseph A. Worcester, hopes to beat the tenants at their own game.

SHARE IN COST OF COAL.

The affidavit which tenants are being asked to sign reads: "I ..... the lessee above named hereby, on oath depose and say that, existing conditions and current expenses having been explained to me as much in detail as I have desired by the within named lessor, I am convinced that the rent reserved to the within lease is just and reasonable."

The following letter was sent to tenants with the leases: "We call your attention to the rider in regard to heat and coal (the tenants to pay their pro rata share for all coal if it goes above $15 a ton) and also to the affidavit which must be executed by you and sworn to before a justice of the peace or a notary public.

"This affidavit is made necessary by the recent legislation which enables a lessee to repudiate his contract in which event it obliges the lessor to prove in court the reasonableness of the rent reserved in the lease."

It is known that persons connected with the company frankly admit that they expect to nullify the effect of the new law through the new leases and that they are willing to go to court to find their rent increases of 40 per cent. It is said that other landlords controlling big blocks of property feel that a test case must be made of the new law and that they, too, plan to insist on more than a 25 per cent. increase.

One of them is known to have told an official of the Mayor's Rent and Housing Committee that his client was going ahead with a 40 per cent. increase and the committee could "go to ——."

SAYS MAJORITY TO PAY.

"The coal clause in the new leases of the Sudbury Real Estate Trust will undoubtedly mean a large expenditure for the tenants, as the trust can store only two weeks' supply of coal at a time. That means that if the cost of coal mounts to $25 or $30 in midwinter, as many landlords predict, the tenants will have to pay every cent over $15 a ton that is expended, even though it can be purchased now at less than $15 a ton," the Sudbury Real Estate Trust loss" $50,000 on these apartments last year," said Mr. Woodruff, the agent, to a Boston American reporter. "We feel that the owner (M. Isenbeck) is entitled to 5 or 6 per cent. on his investment and we have got to increase the rent 40 per cent. to give him such a return.

"Most of the tenants have signed the affidavits, but a few good-for-nothings, who couldn't put up six cents' rent in advance, are protesting. Only 12 or 15 of our more than 100 tenants have protested."

Society Serves Self to Solve Help Problem

Pittsfield, July 20.—W. Murray Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop M. Crane, Jr., and Mrs. Frederick S. Coolidge are among society people of prominence here who have set the fashion for self-service at dinner.

With this innovation they no longer will be bothered with the help problem so far as it relates to waiters. Among those who shoved metal trays along smooth nickel bars of the new cafeteria of the Wendell Hotel, where once the grill and log cabin stood, were:

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sprague Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel G. Colt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Archie Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. FINDS FAMILY AFTER 18 YEARS

Girl Kidnaped and Turned Over to Circus When 5 Years Old Rejoins Relatives

Richmond, Va., July 20.—Kidnaped eighteen years ago, Lona Virginia Joyner, now twenty-three years old and married, has returned to her relatives at Blackstone.

When the little girl, whose home was near Church Hill, in Dinwiddie County, disappeared, bloodhounds were put on her trail and it was established that she had been stolen. After she had gone eight months her mother died of grief. It was thought a negro woman had stolen the child and sold her to gypsies.

On January 15 Chief of Police Sherry here received a letter from Mrs. Zella Early Pickard of Tonawanda, N. Y., asking for any information he could give about the case. She had received a letter from "an interested stranger," saying that "if you are interested write to police headquarters Richmond, Va." In her letter Mrs. Pickard said:

"I was brought up by a woman, circus people and up to eight years ago thought she was my mother. After she told me she was not I left her as I have often asked her who my parents were, but she never told me.

Chief Sherry located a brother and sister of the missing girl, and Mrs. Pickard came to Blackstone, where her sister was living, and claimed her identity.

It appears that the child was taken North and there turned over to a circus woman. She was taught to be a performer and was at one time a featured rider with the Robinson circus. In the circus she met W. T. Pickard, a sea lion trainer, and they were married. Mrs. Pickard has two children.

WELCOME LOW-PRICE MERCHANTS TO CITY

Lawrence, July 20.—When the Retail Clerks' Association protested to the council a plan that "by-by-the-night" merchants have invaded Lawrence and are selling thousands of dollars' worth of poorly made goods, Mayor William P. White said:

"I understand that one of these stores is selling for $3, shoes that not long ago were quoted at $12. If such be the fact, I say 'welcome' to this store and any others like it. I think we can trust the people of Lawrence to know whether they are getting their money's worth."

The Mayor appointed Alderman Peter Carr and Robert S. Maloney a committee to look into the matter.

GIVES ADVICE TO WOMEN VOTERS

Mrs. White Tells Them to Look Up Places to Register

By MRS. TRUE WORTHY WHITE.

Mrs. True Worthy White of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters today begins for the Boston American the second of a series of articles telling women how to become registered for full suffrage in the Fall. The second article follows:

Mayor Peters helped the work of registration of women voters tremendously when he ordered registration places in Boston to be opened August 2, for the purpose of taking care of the new women voters.

This fixes the situation for women in Boston—registration for the school committee voting lists begins August 2. These women on the school committee lists will become full voters when the thirty-sixth State passes the Federal amendment. In the meantime, Boston women wishing to be registered, should keep themselves informed as to announcements. Somewhere, posted in their various wards, will be lists of places for registration. Women should register themselves at the place provided in their particular ward.

A new law has been passed authorizing registration officials to make new places of registration. This because it is expected that the old places will hardly accommodate all, on account of the addition of so many women.

It is therefore incumbent on the prospective woman voter in Boston to make herself familiar with the place decided upon by her ward registrar. And it is to be hoped that, throughout Massachusetts, towns and cities may follow Mayor Peters' example and arrange for early registration of women. Speed must be made to register all available women before the September primaries.

RAID REPORTED AT BOSCOBEL TAVERN

Following a reported raid by prohibition enforcement officers on Boscobel Tavern in North Reading, and the alleged discovery of twenty-five gallons of intoxicants, the proprietor, Edward Fraser, has posted bail of $500 for his appearance in the United States District Court.

'ASHES' SENT TO ROXBURY WIFE

Husband Held Charged With Trying to Make Family Believe Him Dead

With a small urn, supposed to contain the ashes of his cremated body reposing on a shelf in his home, No. 46 Payston street, Roxbury, Nathan Messinger, aged 47, is under arrest in Denver, Colorado, as a result of his wife's refusal to believe him dead.

Mrs. Messenger obtained a warrant charging non-support of herself and their four children in Roxbury Court today. Inspector Concannon left for Denver to serve it.

Messinger, who was a former patient at the Rutland Hospital, recently went to Denver, thinking the change of climate might do him good. For six weeks his wife and four children received no word from him.

About two weeks ago an urn of ashes, accompanied by the following note, to which was signed merely initials, was received by Mrs. Messinger at her Roxbury home:

"Dear Madam—I am very sorry to inform you that your husband has died. He requested that his ashes be sent to you as a memento."

Mrs. Messinger was skeptical. She applied to the Jewish Board of Charities to ascertain the truth of the matter. The society wrote to its Denver Branch and the branch turned the case over to a State humane officer. He found Messinger at No. 2370 South Adams street, Denver, "feeling quite well, thank you."

Messinger protested in vain against being arrested for sending "his ashes" to his wife. He maintained he wanted to return immediately to his home in this city and had intended to leave Denver for Boston.

"It's a joke of someone, I guess," he told the police. "I didn't know anything about it until some of my friends told me about the stories."

The police, however, arrested Messinger and he is being held.

Mrs. Messinger, when seen at her home, appeared greatly relieved to learn that she had not become a widow. She refused to believe of her husband's arrest to believe that he perpetrated the hoax and blames some practical joker.

MAYOR PLANS RAISE IN VENDORS' LICENSES

The City Council" referred to its committee on ordinances an ordinance introduced by Mayor Peters providing for a new scale of fees for itinerant vendors which in the opinion of the committee on ways and means of revenue will net the city fully $50,000 per year.

The present ordinance calling for a fee of $50 is seldom enforced, the revenue derived from it being an exhaustive statement to the Mayor. The new ordinance provides for a fee equal in amount to the tax the city might assess the goods of the individual vendor doing business within the city.

GOOD SUMMER BILL AT KEITH'S

If you can't go to the seashore this week, take in the show at Keith's. It's got the same invigorating effect and May Irwin is featuring the bill, supported by Billie Taylor. This is a bright, breezy warm weather act and furnishes enough laughs for a couple of days.

Then there is Sebastian and the Myra sisters in "Confetti." Apparently this outfit still believes the snowstorms of last Winter have not yet melted away judging by the way they whirl around the stage in a wonderful collection of dances. The dances have brilliancy, speed and all that goes accompanying, but does not expect to see during the Summer months.

Edna Aug also does her part with her usual grace and versatility. She appears in a number of character studies which are humorous as well as true to life.

Mel Klee furnishes plenty of laughs as he tells funny stories and sings quaint songs.

Burt and Lottie Walton appear in a dance act, Davis and Pelle in an equilibristic marvel, Billy Arlington in "Mistaken Twin Happens," A. Robins in "The Waiting Music Shop" and Breeman and Grace in "You'll Be Sure Fri., 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Closed Sun.

At Other Theatres

PARK THEATRE—Enid Bennett appeared at the Park Theatre in "Stepping Out," the first of three big feature films to be shown this week. She is ably supported by a strong cast, making it an unusually good feature picture. On Wednesday and Thursday a picture in which nature's beauties from a wonderful background, "The Valley of the Giants," will be seen with Wallace Reid starring. Robert Warwick is featured in Friday's and Saturday's attraction, "Told in the Hills," a Western drama, alive with action, that holds the keenest interest throughout.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—Mary Miles Minter is the feature attraction at the St. James Theatre this week, in the photoplay, "A Cumberland Romance." She appears to good advantage in this romantic picture. Comedy, vaudeville and a news feature complete the bill.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE—William Farnum, "Bill" will find a congenial picture at the Bowdoin Square Theatre in "The Joyous Troublemakers." Alice Joyce in "The Vengeance of Durand," provides a marked contrast to the former picture, and these are the entertaining acts of vaudeville.

COLUMBIA THEATRE—An excellent program was offered patrons of Lowe's Columbia Theatre, the honors being divided between Anita Stewart in "The More Excellent Way" and Gladys Brockwell in "White Lies." In the evening the audience experienced a few thrills in the amateur vaudeville try-outs. Today's program includes Beatrice Michelena in "The Heart of Juanita" and Lillian Lorraine in "Should a Wife Forgive," with vaudeville in the evening. On Wednesday and Thursday Dorothy Dalton will be seen in "The Dark Mirror" and Wm. Faversham in "The Man Who Lost Himself." Friday's attraction stars Louise Zaza. Pitts in "The Third Generation" and Wanda Hawley in "Miss Hobbs." On Saturday Robert Warwick will be shown in "His Family Honor" and Anita King in "The Girl Angle."

GLOBE THEATRE—At Lowe's Globe Theatre are the first Boston showings of Alice Brady in "The Dark Lantern" and a big Republican special, "Common Sense," both of which furnish good entertainment. Alice Brady cast as the role of a young girl who has to choose her life mate under trying circumstances. On the one hand she is the idol of a royal prince, whom she does not love and who is possessed of a somewhat shady past, while on the other she loves a genial physician, who does not believe in her because of the attentions she has received from the prince. A battle of wits and love ensues. For the last half of the week Blanche Sweet will be shown in "The Girl in the Web," and Mae Marsh in "Hashawa Tim" in "The Tokio Siren."

ORPHEUM THEATRE—A delightful program was offered at Lowe's Orpheum Theatre, with cool atmosphere and refreshing entertainment by an all-star personal. Hawthorn and Cook pleased the throng of patrons and fun in their skit, "Without Rhyme or Reason," which was meant for laughing purposes only. Others who were featured in the offerings of Dan and Bertha Mahoney, Russian entertainers, who offer bits of comedy, revels in the wonder dog, shows more than ordinary canine intelligence and won much favor.

Farrell and Hatch, in a song and dance act, Davis and Pelle in an equilibristic marvel, Swift and Daley brought forth something different in a musical skit with comedy and chatter mixed in. Black and White, the pink lady among vaudeville's gymnasts, gave an added thrill. Alice Brady, in "A Dark Lantern," headed the list of splendid attractions. The story offers a radical departure from any heretofore essayed by this star, and contains "heart interest" for the last half of the week Blanche Sweet will be shown in "The Girl in the Web," in addition to a complete change in the vaudeville offerings.

CODMAN SQUARE THEATRE—Lucy Cotton, whose praises have remained unsung for some time, graced the program of the Codman Square Theatre, Dorchester, in "Blind Love." A most startling depiction of a love story could hardly be offered. She is possessed of ability, ambition and personality, as was nothing of the asset of beauty. Robert Warwick, also a favorite, was shown in "Friday, the 13th," which contains some thrilling moments. A new comedy, news pictorial and photoplay supplement completed the program. For the last half of the week Vivian Martin and Holbrook Blinn will be featured in "The Butterfly on the Wheel," and Alice Brady in "The Dancer's Peril."

The youthful star has the role of Homer Cavender, who gets himself fired from the last available job in town and goes to the city in search of a wider field. There he becomes a clerk in a big establishment. He loses home to spend his vacation in the scene of his childhood, and shows how things have changed. Homer has city clothes and manner, seemingly possesses money and is a person of importance.

He is a man of the hour. He takes advantage of this unexpectedly attained position to put over his pet schemes and to win the fair maiden as well. Priscilla Bonner is the leading woman.

Mary Boland, well-known as the heroine in several of John Drew's stage successes, lends her talents to villainy in "Sisters," a Metro-Screen release. "His Temporary Wife," Joseph Levering's screen adaptation of Robert Alden Bennet's novel, which is the other feature.

TREMONT TEMPLE—There is a powerful dramatic allegory in the Helen Keller picture, "Deliverance," which began an engagement at Tremont Temple that promises every body who sees the photo story. It represents the struggle between Ignorance and Knowledge for the soul of the child Helen. Ignorance is a repulsive brute of great strength, while Knowledge is presented by a woman of exquisite beauty.

At first Ignorance is successful and he holds Knowledge a prisoner in chains in his lair. But as the life of Helen develops and her mind is opened with the marvelous aid of her teacher, Anne Sullivan, the chains that bind Knowledge grow weaker and weaker until she finally shakes off the shackles and with her endowed strength completely masters and overcomes the brute ignorance. The idea is carried out with commendable sincerity and lends an added beauty to a picture that abounds in striking ideas and scenes.

CAMBRIDGE CENTRAL SQUARE THEATRE—Katherine MacDonald, popularly termed "the American Beauty" was enthusiastically received at Gordon's Cambridge Central Square Theatre in her latest First National picture, "Passion's Playground," adapted from the novel, "The Guests of Hercules," by C. N. and A. M. Williamson.

There was also a bill of vaudeville consisting of Taylor, Howard and Sherm, Story and Clark McCarthy and Sherrard, The Heiders and The Rowe Trio.

There will be a new program on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, featuring "Down on the Farm," Mack Sennett's latest comedy.

OLYMPIA AND SUNDAY SQUARE —Helpful hints to girls or boys anxious to ascertain whether one certain member of the opposite sex is responsible to their respective emotions are given in "The Love Expert," starring Constance Talmadge, which was shown at Gordon's Olympia, Washington street, and the Scollay Square Olympia.

This production is the work of John Emerson and Anita Loos, whose stories and adaptations for Constance Talmadge since her affiliation with First National Exhibitors' Circuit have been classic gems of comedy.

As Baba, a romantic boarding school girl, Connie is probably in her most delightful characterization, introducing educational subjects, and devotes herself to the science of practical love-making, with the result that the Board of Regents take action.

The Olympia Weekly, a new comedy and five acts of vaudeville complete the program at both theatres.

Plays That Remain

TREMONT THEATRE—"Mary" at the Tremont Theatre began its twelfth week in auspicious manner with a crowded house. Alone among theatre attractions at the present time, "Mary" dance is lonely, nor does she allow others to feel so.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Mary Pickford is scoring a big success in her latest United Artist picture at the Majestic Theatre in "Suds," the "Queen of Photoplays." The story of "Suds" is laid about a common, ordinary shirt left to be washed in a small laundry in the slums of London-by one Horace Greensmith, cheap actor.

The character of Suds is entirely different from any character ever presented on the screen. Miss Pickford, now that she is producing independently, has shown that she is no stinger in the matter of lavishing money on her supporting cast and scenic effects. The picture was directed by Jack Dillon, and photographed by Charles Rosher, and the scenario was written by Frances Marion Young. The cast includes such well known players as Albert Austin, Mme. Rose Dione and Harold Goodwin.

NORUMBEGA PARK — Raymond Simonds, the silver-voiced tenor, is appearing in the Norumbega Park Theatre this week. Another important attraction is Stella Marvin, violinist. Douglas Fairbanks in his latest photoplay, "The Mollycoddle," is the feature picture for the entire week.

An innovation this week is the two "morning matinees" for children today and Friday, July 23, at 11:30 a. m. The special attraction will be the new and magnificently produced photoplay, "Cinderella and the Glass Slipper," which has just been released.

CRESCENT GARDENS—The popular dancing team, Bradbury and Babb, opened a week's engagement at Crescent Garden Ball Room, Lynnes Beach. The act is entirely different from anything seen here before. It was first staged in New York and "went over" big. For comic, acrobatic and whirlwind dancing they are in a class by themselves, and the week promises to be a record breaker. The warm weather seems to help Crescent Gardens, for the dancing public has come to know that this resort is "Sweept by ocean breezes" and is always cool and comfortable.

JACK MURPHY AT REVERE BEACH—The performance of a double parachute drop at Revere Beach by "Daredevil" Jack Murphy caused a sensation Monday. At 6 o'clock Murphy makes a descent and the plane does about every daring feat known to aviation, under the skilled guidance of Lieutenants T. J. Potter and I. J. Elliott.

STRAND, UPHAM'S CORNER—As the most famous and richest woman in Monte Carlo, Katherine MacDonald is seen in "Passion's Playground," adapted from the story, "The Guests of Hercules," by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, being shown today and Wednesday at Gordon's Strand, Upham's Corner. Wallace Reid in his latest production, "Sick Abed," also was shown, together with the Strand Weekly and a short comedy. There is an entire change of program for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, headed by W. S. Hart in "Sand."

Summer Resorts

PARAGON PARK—Among the new features at Paragon Park and the palm Gardens this week are "Saone," Egyptian and Oriental dancer, with Russian and esthetic dances direct from South America and Panama; Nelly Wilson, soubrette, who just closed with "Poor Little Rich Girl;" Ethel Laws, novelty dancer; Billie Timmons, baritone; the Adair sisters, singing and dancing novelty; Will McGarvie, Henry Bowker's Bel Ali Arabs; Azon and company, trapeze performers.

"Everything Witching Waves," the new $100,000 ride which has replaced the old lagoon, has achieved an instantaneous hit.

Middle Age at 35 or 60?

Physician Explains Why Lack Of Iron In the Blood Saps the Strength and Vitality and Often Makes Men and Women Look and Feel Old Before Their Time.

By Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author

Signs of old age are plainly to be seen in many a man and woman who ought still to be enjoying the rugged health and activity of the early prime of life. Yet often the real cause of their decline is nothing more than lack of iron in the blood and it is surprising how quickly these conditions are frequently corrected once the right kind of iron is supplied.

I am constantly coming across cases in my practice where people not yet 40 show much of the nervousness, lack of energy and general run-down condition which might possibly be expected to come twenty years later in life while others at 60 may still be young in feeling, mentally alert with steady nerves and strong bodies.

Whether we have health and long life is often a question which each one must determine for himself. Signs of old age are largely due to a deposit of waste matter in the blood vessels and cells of the body. Without plenty of strength-giving iron the blood is utterly lacking in the power to overcome this slow poisoning process and keep the body strong and healthy. To make up for the deficiency I usually prescribe organic iron like Nuxated Iron which by enriching the blood and creating thousands of new red blood cells helps to renew the waste tissues and build strength and energy to withstand the ravages of time. I know of no more simple means by which a person can find out if his blood needs iron than by making the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength and see how much you have gained. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength, power and endurance of delicate, nervous run-down people in two weeks' time in many instances. You can procure Nuxated Iron from your druggist on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction or your money will be refunded.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in, one or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff, loose dandruff is rinsed out easily and removes an excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

WE GIVE MERCHANTS LEGAL STAMPS

TO ALL COAL USERS:

We want to have a few words with you on a subject vital to your interest and your comfort.

We want you to consider whether or not it will be to your advantage to have a reserve spot in the nation's coal industry where a supply will be forthcoming despite the strike and shut-down orders of the United Mine Workers of America.

There are four important coal fields in West Virginia operating non-union. They are the Williamson or Thacker field, the Pocahontas field, the Tug River field, and the Logan field. A portion of the New River field is operated open shop. These four and a fraction non-union fields of West Virginia gave to the country its almost sole supply of coal during the November-December strike of 1919.

These four fields yield an annual production of 40,000,000 tons, or approximately forty percent of the total output of West Virginia.

Five million tons of this total is produced in this, the Williamson field, where the United Mine Workers are endeavoring to enforce an organization.

The Logan field production amounts to ten million tons, Pocahontas and Tug River twenty million tons while the production in the open shop mines of Raleigh and Fayette Counties will add five million tons.

This represents approximately 8 per cent of the total annual coal production and exceeds the average consumption of three states.

The anticipated requirements for the present year are estimated at about 500,000,000 tons of bituminous coal.

By far the largest percentage of this amount comes from fields organized by the United Mine Workers.

The United Mine Workers hold and frequently exercise the power to close all the mines under its control. As an organization it accepts no responsibility for contracts with operators, but closes mines regardless.

It has an extensive political program including the nationalization of mines, five day week, six hour day, the right to bargain with and enforce its demands on the government, and so forth, which it proposes to negotiate through congressional action as soon as it shall complete the organization of all the coal fields.

We throw out these hints as to the purposes of the United Mine Workers that you may realize your prospects for a fuel supply in the event the U. M. W. organization gains the ascendency over production in all the fields.

Except for two or three states where the coal delivery must be accomplished before the lakes become frozen, there is no such thing as the storage of bituminous coal. The production and delivery of coal is hand to mouth proceeding. No time is lost for coal between the mine mouth and the furnace that waits for it.

It is quite as much your necessity to have coal in your bin as it is ours to mine it. The interest and the advantages are mutual.

Just a few days' stoppage of all the mines would find the railroads, which consume one-third of the product, unable to move. It would find the industries of the country at a standstill. It would, if in the winter season, result in the discomfort of all the homes and all the people.

The four coal fields named have, heretofore, stood between the country and such a disaster, and will stand ready to afford future relief, if permitted to retain their present attitude of independence of the United Mine Workers' organization.

The Williamson Coal Operators Association has not the means to carry on an extensive advertising campaign even if it appeared advisable to do so.

We have, however, thought it proper to issue a warning to the public of the evil consequences of a probable midwinter coal shortage, to the end that the blame may be lodged where it belongs.

There has never been any labor trouble in the twenty-five years experience of this field. There is no trouble now between the operators and the workmen. Wages are higher here than in the surrounding union fields. The majority of the workmen in this and adjoining non-union fields do not want to be brought into the Mine Workers' union. Work is suspended because of the criminal menaces and threats and intimidations by the organizers and pickets. Many of the workmen have petitioned the law authorities for assurances of protection that they might resume work.

This, in short, is the tale of the present disturbance in the coal fields of Southern West Virginia.

We are not soliciting sympathy. But we want the coal using public to know the cause and the spirit of our fight. We wish it understood that our stand against the invasion of the United Mine Workers, while made at great financial loss, is done in the interest of the permanent good of the public at large as well as of this coal field. Our success in maintaining the independence of our mines affords the only reliance the people have against long and disastrous stoppage of coal production at times in the future.

Approximately 5,000 workers are idle in this city.

'FRONT PORCH' TO BE PICKETED

Suffragists, With Hundreds of Banners, Will Press Demands at Harding Home Thursday

By Universal Service.

Washington, July 20.—Five hundred banners of purple, white and gold and several trunks of gaudy regalia are on their way from Washington to Marion, O., today for the Harding picketing demonstration next Thursday. The shipment was in charge of Miss Julia Emory of the National Woman's party.

Alice Paul, chairman of the National Woman's party, wired today that the militants had opened headquarters within a block of the Harding home, she said.

The demonstration on Thursday is intended to convince the Republican presidential nominee of the urgent demand by the women of the nation that, as leader of the Republican party, he ought to exert his influence to raise the suffrage blockade in Connecticut and Vermont."

TO CAMP AT FRONT PORCH.

The suffrage delegation, which is to see Senator Harding at 10 a. m. on Thursday, the day of his notification, will carry in addition to the purple, white and gold banners, a banner for each State represented in the parade of suffragists, which will march from their headquarters and take up positions around the famous campaign porch.

At the center of the procession will be the biggest banner of all, which will urge a solid vote from the Republican members of the Tennessee Legislature for the suffrage amendment. The banner will point out that a solid vote by Republican members would complete the majorities needed in both Houses for ratification.

The present poll shows eleven of the necessary seventeen pledged in the Senate, and thirty-four of the necessary fifty pledged in the House. Only two Republicans in the Senate are pledged so far to vote for suffrage, with six to be heard from. Eight Republicans are pledged so far House, with twenty to be heard from.

COX CONFERENCE TODAY.

Today Miss Paul and other members of the National Committee of the Woman's party will confer with the Democratic National Committee in Columbus. At the request of Governor Cox a permanent committee of suffragists has been appointed to consult with him constantly throughout the campaign on the suffrage situation. Members of the committee are Miss Sue White, Tennessee, chairman; Mrs. James Rector of Columbus, member of the advisory council, and Miss Elena Pollitzer of Charleston, S. C.

All World and Jersey Dry, Is Prediction

By Universal Service.

Lincoln, Neb., July 20.—That prohibition, within ten years, would cover "the civilized world—including New Jersey," was the statement made by Clinton H. Howard, choice of Nebraska Prohibitionists for the Presidential nomination.

Howard suggested a ticket and a program which he said would not fail to sweep the country—William Jennings Bryan and "Billy" Sunday, as candidates on a platform of "peace and prohibition."

Delegates who have arrived here for the Prohibition party convention declare all that is necessary for Senator Harding to gain the full support of the Prohibitionists is to make an open declaration for enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. In such an event, they say, the Prohibition party would not put a ticket in the field.

HITCHCOCK TO OPEN COX CAMPAIGN IN INDIANA

Washington, July 20.—The Indiana campaign for Governor James M. Cox, Democratic nominee for the presidency, will be opened on August 27, when Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska will speak at Winona Lake. Senator Hitchcock made the announcement here and said that the speech would be at the request of Governor Cox.

Political observers regard it as significant that Senator Hitchcock has been selected to open the fight in one of the pivotal States.

COX FOR LEAGUE, SINK OR SWIM

Determined to Make Wilsonian Doctrines the Big Issue of Campaign

Columbus, O., July 20.—Woodrow Wilson will be the definite issue of the forthcoming Presidential campaign.

Governor James M. Cox, Democratic Presidential nominee, figuratively looped about his neck the amulet—or millstone—of the Wilsonian League of Nations doctrine. Candidate Cox will sink or swim by virtue of this token.

Those Democrats who had hoped that the Governor would elect to differ with the President were severely disappointed when Cox reiterated the pronouncement he made in Washington yesterday.

"My conference with President Wilson was eminently satisfactory," Governor Cox returned to Columbus determined to make the League of Nations the one big issue of the campaign. He made no secret of the proposition that the covenant should be ratified as President Wilson has proposed without any reservations that emasculate it.

"Ed" H. Moore, general of the Cox forces at San Francisco convention and national committeeman from Ohio, and Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the national committee, are here for the committee meeting today.

Governor Cox desired that Moon succeed Cummings as chairman of the national committee. The Governor, however, will not intrude his personal preference against that of the majority of the committee.

Police Expect to Jail Dozen Men, Following Arrest of Former Policeman

arrested most recently were charged with any offence which Barney told about. Both were indicted a considerable period ago. Hart almost two years ago and Dillon in September last.

DILLON WASN'T HIDING.

Dillon, according to Edward P. Barry, who was his attorney during the murder trial, has been at Nantasket for the past six weeks. He was not in hiding, made no effort to leave the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts officers and in fact seemed ready for arrest.

"I did not believe there was a warrant for him," said Attorney Barry today. "For as recently as Saturday last he made that statement to me in the presence of a plain clothes man. He was constantly abroad at Hull and was available.

"Dillon did not want to surrender. He was willing to be arrested, but believed that to surrender would be indicative of guilt. Hence he held off. It was arranged that he come up to Boston today and that he be met at the pier by a Cambridge police officer."

Dillon appeared in perfect physical condition when he stepped ashore. Any ill effects he might have suffered as a result of his operation of last year had completely left him. At Nantasket he was constantly in the open, either swimming or playing ball.

READY FOR ROUND-UP.

Following closely on the arrest of Hart the authorities announced they are in possession of sufficient evidence to round up the real forces behind the "auto ring" implicated by Barney in his confession.

Hart, who has been the storm centre of charges and counter-charges in relation to the auto theft "system," was arrested at his home on a capias issued by the Superior Court by Special Officers Mallahan and Stokes. He was taken to the East Cambridge Jail where bail, fixed at $2,500, was furnished by his wife and Patrick McGuire, an Allston business man.

DOZEN ARRESTS TO FOLLOW.

Hart's arrest, say the authorities, is only one of nearly a dozen that will follow disclosures of the activities of the men responsible for the wholesale traffic in automobiles. Although no names were mentioned by the police, it is known that many leading business men are involved and that before another day has passed several will face charges of complicity in the traffic. Warrants it is believed, have already been issued for at least three of the "ring" leaders, the motivating forces behind the nefarious system.

The former policeman was formally arrested under an old indictment returned in Middlesex County that, according to officials of that county, concerns the history of a certain automobile. Hart, despite the fact that he has been brought to the forefront repeatedly in connection with the disposition of an automobile, denies any part in an irregular transaction.

HART DROVE STOLEN CAR.

Questioned by Harvey, Hart is alleged to have made certain disclosures of a significant nature, including the part he played in driving an automobile to a barn in Saxonville after it had been stolen by another. Hart was then attached to Station 14, Brighton.

After the former policeman had told his story to Harvey he was warned by the latter to be ready on Saturday, two days later, to provide surety in the event of his arrest. Hart however, did not put in an appearance on Saturday and the police were warned to arrest him on sight. Eleventh hour efforts were made to have the case against Hart withdrawn but this the assistant district attorney refused to do, stating that since he had failed to keep his agreement he must suffer the results of his own folly.

Curtis Asks Proof of Reward Charges

Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis of Boston, the first official to take up the charges of the insurance companies that the New England police have received thousands of dollars in rewards for the return of stolen automobiles, declared today he welcomed information of the acceptance of rewards without his sanction by Boston policemen.

The Commissioner declared he would place on trial any officer of his department who had received money in violation of the department regulations. He stated he would give every attention to any complaints that threats had been made by any of his officers that unless rewards were paid, cars would not be returned.

"In the cases so far presented me," said Commissioner Curtis, "there has not been one which was not authorized by me.

"If the insurance men want to stop giving rewards, they should do so. There is nothing to stop them. The talk that stolen cars will not be returned unless rewards are paid is silly. Hundreds of cars are found and returned without rewards being paid. I think that the insurance companies might investigate within the ranks of their adjusters.

"I do not believe that any of our young men are so foolish as to accept money in violation of the regulations of the department."

With the aid of a delatone paste, it is an easy matter for any woman to remove every trace of hair or fuzz from face, neck and arms. Enough of the powdered delatone and water is mixed into a thick paste and spread on the hairy surface for about 5 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This completely removes the hair, but to avoid disappointment, get the delatone in an original package.—Advertisement

PLAN TRAIN FOR COOLIDGE DAY

Special Coaches May Run to Northampton July 27 for Notification Exercises

Providing the demand for tickets is sufficiently large a special train will be run from Boston to Northampton on July 27, when Governor Coolidge will be formally notified of his nomination for Vice-President, according to the Massachusetts Republican Club.

Under the tentative plans the special train will leave Boston at 10 a. m., arriving at Northampton at 2 p. m., one hour before the formal notification ceremonies, and leaving that city at 5 o'clock for the return trip.

Charles H. Glidden, executive secretary of the club, is in charge of the arrangements and it is requested that applications for reservations be made before noon next Saturday.

"If enough tickets are subscribed for at $8.80 for each person for the round trip," says the club's announcement, "the tentative arrangements will be made permanent. Should there not be enough subscribed to cover the guarantee, the money subscribed will be returned."

Brothers at Funeral of Prince Joachim

By International News Service.

Berlin, July 20.—Private funeral services were conducted today for Prince Joachim, youngest son of the ex-Kaiser, who committed suicide Saturday morning.

Four of the brothers of Joachim were present, but not the ex-Kaiser, the ex-Kaiserin nor the former Crown Prince, who are in Holland.

It is said that the former Empress has not yet been told of the death of her favorite son because of the critical condition of her health.

Members of the old court profess ignorance of the whereabouts of Joachim's wife, from whom he was recently divorced. She did not attend the funeral.

'DELOUSING' TO BE DROPPED

Boston Wins Fight Against Strict Quarantine, After Cretic Incident

Boston's fight for modification of the drastic quarantine regulations which caused the recent unpleasantness aboard the White Star liner Cretic has been won.

So much is indicated in dispatches from Washington. Surgeon-General Cummings of the Public Health Service is reported as ready to order the objectionable "delousing" process for trans-Atlantic crews abolished.

It is known that Dr. R. H. Creel, who handled Boston's spirited complaint following the Cretic incident, has recommended such a course at all American ports. The "delousing" treatment can be dispensed with without any danger to the public health, it is declared.

The treatment originally was meant for ships coming from ports with inadequate health service. It recently has been applied, however, to big liners from Naples, which is adequately protected, but where a fight is in progress between health authorities, as a result of which the ships have been sailing without clean bills of health.

The Canopic crew and steerage passengers were the first to be subjected to the "delousing" baths in Boston. The Cretic affair followed, with the angry crew refusing to submit, and indulging in passive mutiny.

Officer Arrests Wife in Arms of Another

Baltimore, July 20.—Chivalry is one thing and duty is another as Patrolman Frank C. Lovett discovered when he found his wife, Emma, locked in the embrace of a strange man on a park bench while making his rounds. Officer Lovett "seen his duty and did it," with the result that both were fined $5 on the charge of disorderly conduct. The "man in the case" was Orville Leadon, aged thirty-one, who admitted that he had met Mrs. Lovett on several occasions, although he knew she was married. Patrolman Lovett says that his suspicions were not aroused when he saw his wife emerge from their home dressed up in her "Sunday best."

PLENTY OF COAL FOR BOSTON

Conferees Declare There Is No Scarcity, but It Must Be Shipped by Water

New York, July 20.—If the New England States can ship their Winter's coal supply by water the serious shortage which threatens many of the most important industries may be averted. This was decided at a conference of bituminous coal operators and representatives of fuel administrators held at the Belmont Hotel.

The plans for supplying New England's coal were discussed minutely. The coal operators expressed themselves as eager to supply New England's wants and pointed out that the acute shortage has been due to lack of coal cars for which the railroads are responsible.

Owing to the congestion of the roads the conferees agreed that until the railroads are able to furnish more cars to take the coal from the mines to the markets the shortage problem in New England will have to be largely met by resorting to shipments by water.

BAKER IS SILENT ABOUT EDWARDS

Secretary Has No "Plan at Present" for Immediate Future of Y. D. Commander

Washington, July 20.—It was announced today at the War Department that Secretary of War Baker had no plan at present with respect to Brigadier-General Clarence R. Edwards and his immediate future.

"Secretary Baker," it was said, "cannot say where General Edwards is likely to be when the tactical reorganization of the army is completed and troops are moved on record on he."

Nobody would discuss the second "passing" of General Edwards when promotions to the rank of major-general were announced late last week.

That members of the American Legion throughout New England are likely again to go on record on behalf of the commander of the Yankee division is shown by the action last night of members of Worcester Post, who adopted a resolution proposed by Colonel Thomas F. Foley, commander of the 101st Regiment, M. N. G., expressing resentment at the treatment accorded General Edwards. As there was not a quorum present, the motion was adopted as the sentiment of the meeting and not an action by the post.

"I hold," Colonel Foley said, "that we should take some action indicating our feelings in this matter. First, because General Edwards is a soldier and gentleman; and, secondly, because, although he is the senior brigadier-general of the army with a record justifying his promotion, other men again have been jumped over him. I will not say anything against these other men, but General Edwards certainly should have been advanced."

Flaherty of the Knights of Columbus when he sails for France to take part in the unveiling of the Knights of Columbus statue. HOLD 6 AT NEWPORT, VT., FOR "RUM-RUNNING"

Newport, Vt., July 20.—Charged with smuggling three gallons of wine across the Canadian border, six men were arrested here on Holland road and held in $200 bail each for the next term of the United States Court. Unable to furnish bail they were lodged in jail. The men are George Gendreau, Harry Cartier, Samuel Traverbay, Joseph E. N. Martin and Dolla Perin of Holyoke and Arthur Russell of Windsor, Vt.

SWEENEY TELLS KIWANIS CLUB "INSIDE" BASEBALL

William J. Sweeney, former captain of the Boston National League baseball club, told members of the Kiwanis Club stories about "inside baseball" at their luncheon today in the Hotel Bellevue. Plans were discussed for the district convention in Portland, Me., from July 23 to 26.

DROWNS IN SIGHT OF VACATIONISTS

Lake Bomoseen, Vt., July 20.—Several fishermen and vacationists saw Lieutenant Leslie Hunter, twenty-four, of Rutland, drown in the lake here, when a canoe in which he and Fremont L. Ross, also of Rutland, were changing places, overturned. They were swimming about the canoe endeavoring to right it, when Hunter by mistake swam for the open lake instead of the shore. Ross attempted to save him, but failed.

Skirts of English Gabardine

A MANUFACTURER of the very first rank had about fifteen hundred Skirts of fine English gabardine. He wanted to sell them, and when we saw them we wanted to buy—they were so beautiful in quality and had so much style and go. He mentioned a round price for the entire lot. Upon figuring the original retail price, about $14,600, we found that the price quoted us amounted to a discount of 42½%. About $14,600 worth of skirts for 8,400; individually a 10.00 skirt for about 5.75 and a 6.75 skirt for about 3.88. We took them. We have not yet had time to sort them out—in fact, some have not been received as this advertisement is being written. But we will sell every one precisely as sold to us—that is, at 42½% discount from regular prices. These are just such skirts as one will see in the specialty shops at Newport, Bar Harbor or Bretton Woods. They are unmatched values at the prices.

4700 Pieces Fine Muslin Underwear

Nightgowns—Chemises—Petticoats—Corset Covers and Bloomers

PRICES of Muslin Underwear have been forced down. Why? The recent drop in the silk market created the odd situation that silk underwear was selling at the same price as muslin underwear was. Of course muslin underwear had to be reduced as few would buy when silk could be had at the same price. We secured muslin underwear at prices so low that we purchased 2,000 Nightgowns, 1,500 Chemises, about 1,200 Bloomers, Corset Covers and Petticoats.

AT the same time manufacturers of fine corsets are rather "on the fence." They do not know whether prices are to go up or come down. If prices do come down they do not want to be caught with a large stock on hand. Then, too, manufacturers are closing down factories to clean up machinery for fall business and were willing to close out their corsets on hand at very low prices. Our disappointment was that we could not purchase larger quantities at the low price offered.

Wealth has come to many men possessing the enterprise and vision to "get in on the ground floor" of new industrial undertakings which bore the earmarks of success. These men were not deterred from investing by the mere newness of the enterprise; they wisely realized that the man who refuses to invest in any new proposition usually bars himself forever from getting anything but small returns from his investments.

Most of America's men of wealth are men who carefully investigated new enterprises submitted to them, became convinced of their soundness and promise, and then with the courage of their convictions invested their money in these new enterprises. The returns in innumerable instances made them rich. They seized Opportunity when it came to them.

We offer you the same opportunity.

CREWS TO BATTLE AT WORCESTER FOR RIGHT TO GO TO OLYMPIC

SYRACUSE AND NAVY ENTERED

Duluth Club Enters Five Outfits in National Regatta

Worcester is all primed for the great national regatta which takes place at Lake Quinsigamond on Friday and Saturday. There are eleven regular events on the program, four of which will be Olympic tryouts, namely, senior double, senior four, championship single and senior eight.

On Thursday night all the competing carmen will be given a public reception on the city hall plaza and will be introduced to the public by Mayor Peter F. Sullivan.

Mayor Sullivan has also issued a proclamation asking Worcester citizens to decorate their homes and business places with the national colors and Worcester is today in gala attire.

As extra event, a junior eight race, has been added to the original program in which two Worcester crews, the Tatassit Canoe Club and Norton Company, will compete.

The eleven regular events include the fastest college and amateur club crews in the country. The Duluth Club has entered four crews in the senior and international fours and two crews in the senior eight.

The U. S. Naval Academy has entered two crews in the senior eight and one crew in the senior four. The Annapolis rowers are expected to arrive in Worcester tonight.

The crews from Philadelphia known as the Schuylkill navy are due to arrive in Worcester this afternoon with eight boats.

Tomorrow afternoon the Duluth delegation, including members of the Syracuse University crew, with ten shells and fifty-six oars are expected.

The Boston and New York crews, with fifteen boats, are expected to arrive here Thursday morning and will be quartered at the Norton Company and Knights of Columbus boat houses.

BAY STATE AUTO MEN GOLF AT WINCHESTER

Exceptionally good golfing featured the July tournament of the Bay State Automobile Association at the Winchester Country Club, and there were thirty-five starters.

The best gross score was made by James Travers, whose card showed 87. The best net was registered by J. J. Lowe, 88—16—72. F. H. Skeggs made the second best net with 88—14—74, and the third prize went to H. Stevens, 90—16—74.

H. T. Rood and R. K. Stephenson were tied for the visitors' best gross with the total of 86.

AMATEUR BIKERS TO HAVE TITLE RACE

The "simon pure" athletes will have their inning at the Revere cycle track tomorrow night when they battle out for the New England championships, for the first races for the amateurs are the only part of a double feature card, the second half of which will bring together Wiley Hafferty, Carman and Vanderstuyft in a one-hour motor paced match. The double feature is one of the biggest and best cards yet staged at the new saucer and will without doubt draw the record crowd of the season.

BROOKLYN MASCOT DROWNS AT COLUMBUS

Columbus, O., July 20.—Benjamin W. Lowe, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was drowned in the swimming pool at an amusement park here. He was mascot of the Brooklyn Nationals.

Department Store League Notes

A. Shuman and R. H. White played a 6 to 6 tie game at the North Bridge on Thursday afternoon. Darkness stopped the game after the ninth. Tom Rafferty, an old Cleveland player, starred in centre field for Shuman, while the fielding of Malley featured the playing of the White team. The game was in the Boston Department Store League series. The box score:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
R. H. White	0	1	0	2	2	0	0	0	1	6	13	3
A. Shuman	0	1	0	2	0	0	2	0	1	6	11	2

Batteries, McDonald and Finer; Jefferson and Murphy.

This is the Shuman nine's busy week. The team opened up by executing a 6 to 4 tie with R. H. White playing in an attempted payoff of a postponed game and the Shuman players are busy during their noon-day practice periods getting limbered up so as to be ready to meet the Hovey team. The result of the game Thursday should be to the Shuman advantage. A victory will put the boys right now will one leaders, a defeat will leave Shuman players are not even considering that.

Tubby's size is to be strengthened in the infield by the addition of Joe Roberts, former Steel League player, and Billy Connell of Roxbury. Captain "Mike" White has been looking for material for the outfield ever since the season opened and he now thinks that his troubles in this department are over.

Shepard Stores' team was greatly benefited by their surprise victory over the Y. M. C. A. last at North Brighton. It would be a good idea for all the teams in the department stores outside of their schedule.

Tom Rafferty of Shuman went through a hot hour and a half work-out with his former teammates at Penney Park last Saturday. Other than a little stiffness he is looking fine. He is determined to be in the game if he can get into it and will be a great help to Shuman if he can get some of the old form he used to show with the Cleveland team.

It will not be the regular H. H. White's nine which will play at Penn All Dorchester Park, but a picked team from the Post, American Legion, Penn All Dorchester Park nine, Saturday. The team will be represented by some of the players who helped to make it will be a pick up team from employes.

CALM DELAYS YACHT RACE

Light Breeze Puts Back Starting Time of International Event

starting point, were almost exactly the same as on sturday. A light northwestern breeze was blowing in the upper bay but did not extend out to sea.

SHAMROCK GOES TO LINE.

Shamrock today was again the first to drop her mooring line and start out. Under three lower sails and her largest club topsail, she rounded the end of the hook shortly after 9 o'clock, slipping along easily under a light, westerly breeze with the strong ebb tide.

Captain William P. Burton was in charge of the Shamrock.

Sir Thomas Lipton changed front on his attitude toward the skipper of the Shamrock, having plainly intimated Sunday that another would guide the challenger.

It is understood that Sir Thomas in further consultations on the Vigilancia decided to give Captain Burton a chance to sail the Shamrock again, feeling it would be rather unfair to oust his skipper without letting him show his worth in a true racing wind.

INSISTED ON CHANCE.

Captain Burton, it is said, was insistent he had not had a chance to get the best results out of the challenger owing to fluky conditions.

Accompanying the skipper in the race, however, were to be four notables, Duncan F. B. Wells, Charles Nicholson, Alfred Dipper, and Sailing Master Turner, any one of whom is apt to be called on to relieve Captain Burton of both helm and skippership before the race is ended.

Sir Thomas was the essence of confidence today, despite the fact that the Resolute defeated the Shamrock in both the first two contests. He said:

"Shamrock is not beaten yet. Other than to say there will be no change for today's race, I cannot discuss the subject."

There was little Shamrock money to be found. Odds were quoted at 7 to 5 with the Resolute favored and plenty of money waiting to be covered.

RESOLUTE CREW CONFIDENT.

The opinion was expressed in Wall street that it would take nothing short of 2 to 1 to bring out the green sails to back the green challenger.

Sir Thomas Lipton has received a cablegram of congratulations from King Alfonso of Spain. It reads as follows:

"ALFONSO."

"Delighted to hear of your victory. Go on.

The Resolute went to the line today in fine condition. The crew is scrappy and confident and feel certain that the Shamrock will not take another race.

The weather bureau at Washington issued this special forecast for the race:

"The winds off Sandy Hook should be mostly northwesterly and light to slightly fresh. The weather will be generally fair with a few clouds."

British Nettled by Press Criticisms of Burton

Highlands, N. J., July 20.—British experts find no occasion exists which demands such drastic action as the removal of Captain Burton as skipper of the Shamrock IV. The British yachting group consider that in the two races sailed, the boats have by no means been subjected to an all around contest.

They believe that the storm of criticism that has burst above Captain Burton seems largely to have been concocted by the American press. The British declared that would-be experts have found it easier to criticise than to discuss the race intelligently.

Wilson Battles Fisher in Title Bout

By JACK CONWAY.

Johnny Wilson, world's middleweight champion, will risk his title at Syracuse tonight when he meets Young Fisher in a ten-round bout. Fisher will have to score a knockout or be fouled to win as no decision will be rendered. As there is little likelihood of either of these events occurring, it looks as though Wilson would merely have to go the distance and then make a mass attack on the box office for several thousand dollars.

The bout should result in an easy victory for Wilson. The latter has already beaten the Syracuse youth once. The grand event took place at the Fenway A. A. last Summer.

Wilson got only a few hundred dollars for that engagement, as there was a slim house. Tonight he will be paid a healthy guarantee, besides having a percentage privilege. A championship title is quite an asset in these days of profiteers, et alia.

Referee for Big Mat Bout to Be Picked Today

The referee for the title wrestling match between Joe Stecker and Rentie Sharpnack, booked for the Revere cycle track for Thursday night, will be selected today. George Bartner of New York, who was the third man in the ring at the Stecker-Caddock match, will probably be the selection. Ed. W. Smith, sporting editor of the Chicago American, and Dr. Ben Roller, the Detroit fan, also have been mentioned for the position.

Gardini will today complete his strenuous training at Nahant. He will take things easy tomorrow and Thursday so that he will be at his best when he enters the ring Thursday night. Promoter Daro announces that the main bout will start at 9:30 sharp as he wants to give the out-of-town fans an opportunity to make their train connections.

For the information of hundreds of fans who have been bombarding the sporting department of the American with queries be it known that reservations may be secured at Room 23, American House, Hanover street.

Dundee Planning to Go on Stage

Johnny Dundee, who pastimes at the race tracks when not busy waloping our noble lightweights, is to be followed by his brother after he retires from the ring. The Scotch Wop believes he would be as successful before the footlights as he is under the calcium glare in the ring.

Bout Should Settle Fulton's Standing

Fred Fulton's ring standing will be definitely determined when he tackles Harry Wills in a ten-round contest at Newark next Monday night. When Fulton showed in title city several years ago against Sam Langford, he looked like one of the world's greatest ring prospects. He had the distinction of stopping the famous "Pat Babe" Last Winter when Fulton showed here against John Lester Johnson he did not make such a good impression.

One of the world's best heavyweights. In fact there are many persons well versed in boxing who believe the giant negro would be able to defeat Jack Dempsey.

INDIANS PLAY FINAL TODAY

Speaker and Tribe Hope to Land Getaway Game From the Sox

By NICK FLATLEY.

Cleveland's flying Indians and the Red Sox wound up their series at the Fenway ball yard today. Originally a double-header had been scheduled, but it was called off owing to the fluttery condition of the respective pitching staffs. The game will be played when next the Sneakers visit here, both managers hoping that by then, as pot might say, there will be plenty of fingers burned.

The home stand of the Sox is waning, and it hasn't been what you'd call a screeching success. The percentage has melted steadily under the burning rays of the July sun and the assaults that the Westerners have delivered. To all intents and purposes, the race is over as far as Boston is concerned, and the rest of the season merely a matter of watching the batting for reports of Babe Ruth's homers.

NATIONAL LEAGUE STARS IN DEMOCRATIC CLUB

Columbus, O., July 20.—With Jake Daubert of Cincinnati Reds as president, the Cox-Roosevelt League of Professional Baseball Players has been incorporated, other incorporators besides Daubert were: Walter J. Maranville of the Braves, Charles D. Stengle of the Phillies, Ivy Wingo and Edward Rousch of the Reds and Leon Cadore of the Dodgers. A message pledging support to the Democratic ticket was sent to Governor Cox at the time of incorporation.

SYRACUSE CREW WINS BY MARGIN OF TWO FEET

Duluth, July 20.—Syracuse University's senior eight defeated the Duluth Boat Club seniors by a two-foot margin, in a mile and a quarter race. The times were Syracuse 6.17, Duluth 6.17½.

BRAVES WIND UP AGAINST CUBS

Stallings' Band Is Eager to Secure Victory in Get-away Game

Chicago, July 20.—The Cubs were in the midst of a winning streak as the Braves concluded their stay here this noon, but that was not the main feature of North Side baseball.

The Braves conclude their series here today and open up in St. Louis tomorrow. Stallings' tribe was quick to wind up their stay here with a victory.

Major Mann loves his kits. He is a good batsman and is justly proud of his prowess. No sooner had the Braves' ears as the crash of the celebrated ash upon the equally well known horsehide. He let loose a mighty swing and the ball hopped between Merkle and first base and to right field. Manifestly it was a hit—but on the score board they dashed the big red "E" and "Maje" almost fell over in surprise.

RICKARD MAY TAKE CARPENTIER CONTRACT

New York, July 20.—Talk of a Jack Dempsey-Georges Carpentier match in New York soon after the French champion returns to the United States in September was revived here today by reports that Tex Rickard is negotiating for the contract for Carpentier's services held by C. B. Cochran, the British promoter. Dempsey's refusal to fight Carpentier anywhere but in the United States is said to have caused Cochran to indicate a willingness to dispose of his contract.

MAVERICK MILLS GETS BOOST

Addition of Fitton Players to Roster Greatly Increases Strength of Team

The Maverick Mills team has been strengthened considerably by securing many of the Fitton players. The Fittons are considered one of the fastest semi-pro nines in the state. The Maverick lineup in the future will include: Goodwin, formerly of Boston Latin and the Allied Veterans, who will do the backstopping; Beck, 1st and Anderson, who will do the twirling along with Murphy, who has been doing high grade ball; Tom Ring, formerly of the High School of Commerce, daffiest old Rochester International League player; Cummings formerly of Pere Marquette of Saco Boston.

Arthur Sullivan will cover the hot corner in the absence of Dutch Reidel, who will play the outfield. Dick Neale will play left, Palato and Silva will also be in the outfield. Cummings will act as captain.

The Texas Company and Walworth nines meet tonight at the M Street Playground. As these two teams battled 1-1 game in the Boston Business League recently, a good game is anticipated.

All the teams in the Business League will get into action Thursday night, when will meet the Texas Company at M street playground; Boston Rubber, with Herb Moran, formerly of the Packards pitching, will play at Pierce field, Roslindale, with McElwain as opponents; Hawley-Folsom and Lever Bros cross bats at Revere Park; Dorchester and the Packards and Walworths play at Volkmann Field, Allston.

The Revere Tigers are out to meet the Cubs five nights and the Braves nine Chelsey Pick eased a grounder to Vaughn, which he gummed and a big red "E" was flashed on the score board. Fowler, in protest from the Boston bench. Frantic, which is to say soon, the major approached the swatting place. He let loose a mighty swing and the ball hopped between Merkle and first base and to right field. Manifestly it was a hit—but on the score board they dashed the big red "E" and "Maje" almost fell over in surprise.

Ruth Twice Breaks Home Run Record

New York, July 20.—It's not often a man breaks a record twice in the same day.

"Babe" Ruth, king of the swat, performed that feat, however, when he smashed the major league home-run record for recent clouts by poling out a four-sacker in the fourth inning of the second White Sox-Yankee game, and then broke the record again with another homer in the ninth.

Ruth now has thirty-one runs to his credit.

HAGEN WAVERED BADLY AT DEAL

Apparently Was Never Certain of Any Shot—Showed Trace of Nervousness

This is the sixth article in a series on the British open golf championship which is being written by Robert E. Harlow, the golf editor of the American, who returned last week from Great Britain.

By ROBERT E. HARLOW

When playing for the highest stake in international golf a player should always be shooting well within himself. He should be hitting the ball firmly, yet easily, and be putting with confidence. George Duncan played under the strain of knowing he was in the running the first day at Deal in the British open championship, and struggled to return with two rounds of 80.

Duncan did not think he had a chance to win when he started the second day's play, as he was in a tie for sixteenth place. The great strain of being near the top was not with Duncan then, and he played well within himself, hitting the ball firmly and without effort and putting fairly well for him. There was nothing to worry him and he fell into the proper golfing tune, doing a 71 and a 72 and winning the championship.

Hagen Never Had Real Touch at Deal

Hagen never attained his real touch at Deal. He had been figuring on making a good showing there for more than a year, and although up to the minute of starting from the first tee he appeared to be in the usual calm and confident self, once on the links he never got himself in the mood which makes it easy for a golfer to play his shots easily and correctly.

The writer never saw Hagen struggle as he did in his first and second rounds at Deal. He appeared to be trying for everything he got, and a remark he made before hitting his second shot at the twelfth hole of his first round indicated plainly that he was not playing within himself but was unsettled and struggling.

Hagen usually plays each shot with great confidence, selecting his club with care and going into the ball as if he felt perfectly certain the result would be satisfactory. He was not in this happy mood at Deal. His tee shot at the 440-yard twelfth was hooked a little rough, but the ball did not lie badly.

Hagen in Uncertain Frame of Mind

Walter looked the situation over and pulled out an iron. He put the iron back and took a brassie, making this comment before hitting the ball: "This will be a hit or a miss."

A golfer, in a championship stroke competition, should not be in such a frame of mind that as he takes his stance he feels he is about to take a chance. He should be in such a mood that he will say: "I am going to make the remark, ——— I am going away well. His drive from the first tee was hit near the toe of the club face and sliced into the rough at the second hook. It was not more than 150 yards out. Hagen's second shot was played with a approbation stuff but hit but 14 inches away. He missed the putt and thus started with a five down a par hole.

Hagen Approach Overran Badly

Although he looked the green over carefully before making his approach putt, he gave the impression as he hit the ball that he did not feel at all certain as to how he was taking a chance. The ball overran by seven feet and Hagen missed coming back, taking a five on another par four hole.

Hagan got a par five at the 476-yard third and a fine one at the 150-yard fourth, when he sank a 20-foot putt. The made his fifth worse than fifth par. His drive and second to the fifth were both sliced into rough, the ball lying badly. He pitched close and got a par five. This hole was not well played.

Hagen sniffed drivers at the sixth, but his tee shot was in the rough at the edge of the green. After a struggle for his four, his approach running to the edge beyond the cup. He played the seventh carefully and made it in 3, 3, 3, the par figures, although at the ninth his tee shot was in the rough. He was out of bounds on two shots and the ninth in 38, which was not bad. It was the manner in which he hit his shots that caused worry in the American camp.

Open Champion Took 44 Coming in

Hagen took 44 coming in. His tee shots were in the rough at the 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th and 17th and in a bunker at the short 14th. He got a par five at the 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th and 17th and in a bunker at the short 14th. He got a par five at the 10th, three putts. The hooking and bad putting made him take 44 coming in for a 78, two over par at all of the holes where he made the mistakes excepting the 10th and 14th. At the 14th he hit a fine second from a swampy lie to the green, for his par, and at the 15th he got down in one putt.

His card and par for the 18 nine shows the lack of control shot him above the par figures:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	Out
Hagen	5	4	3	5	4	4	4	5	4	38
Par	4	4	3	5	4	4	4	5	4	37
The out	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	37
Hagen	5	4	3	5	4	4	4	5	4	38
Par	4	4	3	5	4	4	4	5	4	37

Ouimet Practically Only Player of Prominence Not on Entry List

One hundred and twenty-two golfers, representing twenty-five clubs, are entered for the Massachusetts State amateur golf championship which starts at the Country Club, Brookline, tomorrow. Virtually the only player of note whose name does not appear upon the list is Francis Ouimet, the present champion, who some time ago decided to enter into any more golf competitions during the current season.

Aside from the competition from the competition from this State amateur championship, there will be a great deal of interest in the Windsler Shield tournament, run in connection with the qualifying round tomorrow. The Windsler Shield will be won by the club, five members from which make the lowest aggregate score, the five players being required to complete through match play.

LONGWOOD DOUBLES UNDER WAY TODAY

The second round of singles and the first round of doubles were played at Longwood today.

The feature match of first round of the doubles, which was played on the championship court, was between W. Johnson and H. C. Johnson against R. C. Seaver and P. J. Sullaway.

Both Harry and Wallace through his first two matches with ease. He defeated E. A. Barlow in the first round in straight sets. It took only thirteen games to settle this match with Johnson among the first set 6-4 and the second 6 love. In the second round he found a little tougher competition in C. Curley of Rhode Island. He was not forced to his limit, however, and won 6-3 and 6-4.

Harry will have W. Johnson for his next opponent. This match will not be played until Wednesday afternoon at 2 p. m.

Wallace Johnson went through the first two rounds of play without any trouble. He met A. J. Lowe in the first round, whom he defeated 6—1 and 6—love, and J. H. Fenno in the second round, when he also beat by two 6—2 scores.

HOWARD DREW QUITS THE CINDER PATHS

Howard P. Drew, joint holder of the world's record for the 100-yard and the 220-yard dashes, has run his last race, so he informed the Springfield after his failure to gain a place on the American Olympic team. Drew says that the statement that he would not compete again on the cinder path is true.

Drew made his record run in the century in 1914, covering the course in 9 2-5 seconds. Bernie J. Wefers is the joint holder of this record with him. A month before he made his 100-yard dash record Drew equalled the world's record for the 220, being clocked in 21 1-5 seconds.

Watch for This Story in Motion Pictures

"The World and His Wife," soon to be seen in motion pictures at the best theatres, is a Cosmopolitan production released as a Paramount-Artcraft picture from the play by Charles Frederic Nirdlinger, founded on the dramatic verse of Jose Echegaray.

THE STORY TO DATE.

In romantic Seville Don Julian Gorgas, an influential man past the flush of youth, falls in love with Teodora, a beautiful orphan, who reciprocates his affection with a whole-hearted devotion. Don Julian calls on Teodora in her garden and tells her how great is his attachment. The lovers walk in the garden while the world passes by outside.

Screen Version Novelized

By Jane McLean.

THEY walked to the gate together and the man entered the carriage, leaving his heart in care of the vision in white who stood watching her lover depart. Soon she would be his and he would be hers; there would be no partings.

"My little flower," the old nurse broke in on her reverie, "you are happy."

"Happy? I am in love," she laughed and turned to throw her arms about the neck of her guardian.

"We shall go into the house Carissima."

And discussing the virtues of Don Julian and the plans of the forthcoming wedding the girl and her duenna entered the patio of the old place both were to leave so soon.

He is a good man," said the nurse;" he has promised I shall go with you. It has taken a great load off my heart."

"Don Julian is the personication of kindness," the girl answered smiling; "he is always thinking of others and never of himself, and that, I think, is one reason for his success in the world."

"You shall wear the veil of your sainted mother," said Maria, reverting to the wedding. "It is laid away in the big chest; and the pearls your father gave her shall adorn your throat. Oh, it is plain to see Don Julian is marrying you for love, Carissima."

"For love," echoed Teodora, "as I am marying him."

"A pity he were not ten years younger," mused Maria.

"No, no, he is young enough; better far than the simpering little beaux who go mincing up and down the street thinking only of their clothes and their clubs."

In a way Teodora was right; Don Julian had reached the age of forty with his heart untouched and his mind too busy with big affairs for leisure to dally with the gallantries that most Spaniards regard as the seasoning of life.

His success had been dependent on his own efforts and that success had been pronounced enough to win him the usual host of friends and the usual number of enemies. He was nevertheless a man of winning personality, such a man as would appeal to the heart of a girl like Teodora, brought up in seclusion and taught to value achievement rather than show.

She might have become the bride of any one of a half dozen gay young bloods of Seville, for she stood supreme as the beauty of that city of boasted belles. But from the first her love for Don Julian had been as sincere as his for her.

With him it was a case of love at first sight, perhaps because he had now attained a place where he could afford to look at women as possible mates, perhaps because the alluring freshness and loveliness of the girl made appeal to his lofty nature.

An Unexpected Visit

He fancied that he saw deeper into her soul than those others who had offered her their all and had been refused; he fancied that he had discovered a fine spirit answering to the fineness of his own, and as his courting of the orphan proceeded he felt more and more sure he was winning a treasure such as no man in all Castile and Aragon could claim the equal.

Don Julian in lavish, princely household, carried on capably by servants in the years since he had attained affluence, looked askance; his brother, Don Severo, and his wife Mercedes, in Madrid, wondered why this man to whom they owed so much, could think of taking a bride not highly dowered. His associates in the clubs of Seville, who had come to regard him as a bachelor not to be swayed by a pretty face, laughed good naturedly, and wondered if human nature wasn't the same at all ages when a lovely woman entered the lists.

To all these comments he was oblivious; he moved in a new world; he found himself dreaming of Teodora in every flower he saw something that resembled some of the girl's personality; the sparkle of her eyes, the raven lustre of her hair, the whiteness of her arms, the olive tint of her cheeks; the skies and the fields, the winds and the little noises and happy scenes of daily life all conspired to move him because they recalled something that made him think of her.

To Don Julian the world was in love and therefore lovely. In retrospect he held before his mind's eye his past of struggle and toil. Had he been lonely and discouraged? Had he been patient and forbearing? Had he done his best to win his way through hard work and persistent application? Well, this was his reward, and the severity of his earlier years was to be atoned for by the happiness of his full manhood.

When Hearts Are Trumps

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXXVI.

ROBERT ELLIOT, waiting in New York for a message from the girl he loved, found it hard to work.

According to his promise, he had mailed a letter to Barbara on Monday morning on his way to the office. In this he had poured out his heart to her, repeating all the love-vows he had made on that wonderful Saturday night when they had stood together on the veranda of Arthur Paige's house.

He had had no little time in which to tell her all that was in his heart! He had foolishly accepted an invitation to dinner when he met Mrs. Jameson and Mary on Sunday noon. He had supposed that he could leave their home by two o'clock. But, to his chagrin, dinner was served later than he had expected. Then they had insisted that he sing for them before his departure.

He could not be discourteous and refuse. He had even told Mary that he wanted to call on Barbara. But Mrs. Jameson had been most insistent. At last Mary had come to his relief and had told him that they would excuse him if he really had another engagement.

Thus it had happened that he was too late for a private talk with his betrothed. And he had had no chance to explain all this to her. In fact, the period in which he was in her company had been so hurried that there had been only that minute in the station in which to repeat that he loved her. He added to his long epistle a postscript begging his sweetheart to send him at least a note, immediately.

This plea must have reached her merely on Tuesday morning. Yet the following day brought no reply.

On Monday night, Robert wrote another letter, for he longed to tell Barbara again of his devotion.

This was the letter that Cynthia Paige had copied on the hall table on her return from the moonlight picnic. And that, too, Barbara had never seen.

A Third Letter

In spite of the silence of the girl he loved, Robert Elliot wrote to her for the third time on Wednesday evening. He did not finish the letter that night, intending to add something to it the next morning.

But the next morning brought him a brief note from Barbara. He tore it open eagerly.

At first he could hardly believe the evidence of his own senses. It could not be Barbara—his Barbara —who had penned this curt repudiation of all that he had said and done while he was in Summerfield!

What could it mean? The world was whirling around him.

Impulsively, he started to write a vehement protest. Then he reread her note.

"This requires no answer," she said, "I prefer that you do not answer it."

Dare he set to naught her expressed wish?

He sprang to his feet and began to pace the room. The sound of a clock striking reminded him that he should be at his office. With a smothered groan he thrust the puzzling note into his pocket and rushed off to the subway.

All day misery possessed him. He dare not telegraph—for one of the elder Paiges might see the message or question Barbara. In imagination he began letter after letter to her, only to remember that she had forbidden his writing.

That afternoon he reached a conclusion. He would wait for twenty-four hours before disobeying her command. Surely she must by then repent of her unkind words. Something must have happened to disturb her. Moreover, she might not have received his second appeal before declaring her harsh mandate.

He looked at the head of her letter. It was dated "Tuesday night," probably his second epistle to her had not reached her until Wednesday morning. Yet his first must have told her how much he loved her.

The Blow Falls.

Had he been lacking in will power he would have wavered from his decision not to communicate with her just yet. The long distance telephone was alluring—but Miss Paige might answer were he to call up Barbara, and Barbara herself might be angry were he to ignore her expressed desire to cease all communication with him.

So he waited, sleeping little, eating little, and in a state of wretched uncertainty.

On Thursday morning Barbara's second letter came.

He saw at a glance that it was not much longer than its predecessor—was not a real letter—only a stiff note.

"Dear Robert," it ran, "this note may seem unnecessary to you, yet as we have been rather good friends I would like you to be one of the first to learn of my engagement to John Brandon.

"I believe you will wish me happiness, for you must know, as does everybody, what a good man he is. I hope we may have chosen wisely.

"The engagement will be announced soon, but I wanted you to hear of it first from me.

"Sincerely your friend,

BARBARA."

Barbara engaged! Barbara to marry another man!

Suddenly Robert recalled how she had asked him in the first flush of their love talk if he could support her. He remembered now how the question had jarred.

So she was looking out for a comfortable fortune, was she? She had played with him until she was sure of a rich old bachelor!

Yet how she had clung to him—how she had seemed to love him! And all the time—

With a groan he dropped into a chair and buried his head in his hands.

Woman Under Thirty

By Beatrice Fairfax

"CAPTIVATINGLY capricious.

"Fascinatingly futile.

"Irresistibly irrational.

"Ingeniously inexperienced.

"Politically pusillanimous.

"Wholly and charmingly incomprehensible."

What's all this? Nothing in the world but the publicly expressed opinion of an Englishman concerning the women under thirty. Of course, this man happens to be a politician fighting against granting the vote to women at twenty-one. He says he doesn't want women to "have her nose in politics till she knows what she's about."

But he suggests an interesting variation of the woman question of today and one in considering which many women will probably find a lot of consolation for the "dear dead days beyond recall" when they were young and lovely.

Prime Asset

Youth seems to be woman's prime asset today. And if she hasn't youth she goes in and uses cosmetics and carefully planned costumes to produce the semblance of youth. Everywhere the public demands youth—to entertain it in musical comedies, to sell it pretty things over the counter, to shampoo its hair, to wait on it at table. The vitality and sweetness of youth seems to be making so large an appeal on the amusement and necessity buying public that a wrinkle or a gray hair or a double chin fairly doom woman to suspicion—or unemployment.

But when you stop to think about it, has youth everything to offer? Hasn't maturity a lot to offset youth's appeal to the eye and its power to stir the heart?

Now let's consider the things of which the Englishman accuses our beloved and much worshipped youth: "Caprice," that's fickleness; "futility," that's a lack of purpose; "irrationality," that means not possessed of reasoning powers; "inexperience," lacking knowledge; "pusillanimous" means cowardly; "incomprehensible," which indicates beyond human understanding.

Dear me—dear me! That is a large order and what we might call some accusation. Of course, youth isn't as bad as all that; but then neither is it the marvellous thing maturity and the blessings it is likely to bring.

We Are Humans

For caprice, stability. For futility, purpose. For irrationality, the charm of sane ability to reason things out. Instead of inexperience and the dewy sweetness we attribute to that, the warmth and kindness and broad humanity which come from living and suffering and understanding. In place of the cowardice which comes from not knowing enough to have an opinion and stick to it, years bring a steadfastness to principle and a steadiness of purpose. And with the mellowing of years comes also the understanding which permits understanding in turn.

The woman of thirty isn't "on the shelf," and she does herself a grave injustice if she thinks she is. Just let her study youth's handicaps—and measuring the things she has to offer, recover the buoyancy which comes from faith in herself. Nineteen has sweetness and lure for the eye. Thirty has all the beautiful gifts which appeal to the mind and soul of man.

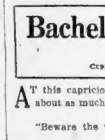
Bachelor Girl's Reflections

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

AT this capricious season of the year a man's "I-love-you" is worth about as much as a Bolshevik "I-O-U."

"Beware the Greeks most when they offer gifts"—a woman most, when she offers platonic friendship.



Nowadays, when a man makes up his mind to marry a girl, he doesn't pursue her—he merely stops running.

Warning a man against a dangerously fascinating woman is about as effective as telling a small boy the "cherry-tree" story, and then handing him a hatchet to play with.

Where is the man who used to carry his wife's picture in the back of his watch, where he could see it? Gone, gone, dear heart, with the girl who used to carry her money in her stocking, "where nobody could see it."

The way of the transgressor, as a general rule, is to blame it on a womaneither the one who "drove" him to it, or the one who "lured" him to it.

Today's daughter doesn't play with dolls and plan to grow up and marry and have four children. She goes to the movies, and plans to grow up and be a "vamp" and have four husbands.

Most of the unhappiness in marriage is caused by the terrible lifelong effort to be happy in somebody else's way.

The secret of social reform may not lie so much in holding women up to the standard of angels as in holding men up to the standards of women.

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Watkins

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

WATKINS

VARIATIONS — Watson, Waters, Waterson, Watts, Watkinson.

RACIAL ORIGIN—Medieval French.

SOURCE — A Christian name.

AS a family name, of course, Watkins is a purely British product, with a decided Anglo-Saxon influence apparent in the ending, not only of this name, but of all its variations.

The explanation is this: It was taken to England as a Christian name by the Normans at the time of the conquest, and through the several centuries in which close communication was maintained between the Normans in England with Normandy it became quite widespread. It began to develop into a family name at anout what might be called the middle period of family-name formation; that is to say, at the period when the Norman population of England decided to consider itself English, and the Anglo-Saxon tongue in modified form began to re-assert itself.

The Christian name from which it developed was Walter, and the specific person who gave that name popularity on the continent just prior to the Norman invasion of England was a saintly Walter who lived in the dukedom of Aquitaine about the year 990.

The more famous Walter, famous in the historical sense, that is, St. Walter, Abbot of Fontanelle in the middle of the twelfth century, probably did not have so much influence on the popularity of the name in England, for by that time the ties with the continent were less strong.

The name was often pronounced, and even spelled "Watter;" and also contracted into "Wat." The ending "kin" was the regular diminutive of the Anglo-Saxon tongue, and the final "s" indicates a shortening from the ending "son."

The name Watkins is identified very early with Prince Edward's County, Virginia, where Thomas Watkins of Chickahominy was the first bearer of the Watkins name on record in this country. He married Temperance Hughes, and, according to the quaint history of the Watkins family, "was a "model husband," whose wife's death caused his own.

"He was very plain appearing," the record goes on to tell, though a simple, upright man of ability. Perhaps it was due to the "plain appearing" that, on the outbreak of the Revolutionary War, the company of countrymen he had raised for service was refused by General Lee, and, later, was commended by General Washington himself for the "action at Guilderord" and its gallantry there. Thomas came out of the war a colonel, and he purchased his plantation and an honorable name and traditions to his son, Dr. S. V. Watkins.

Tomorrow—Russell.

New Hair Growth After BALDNESS

On legal affidavit, John Hart Brittain, business man, certified to this: "My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. The scalp was shiny. An expert said that he thought the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of my ever having a new hair growth. Yet now, at an age over 60, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, strong, lustrous hair! No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photographs." Mr. Brittain enrolled further:

INDIAN'S SECRET OF HAIR GROWTH

"At a time when I had become discouraged at trying various hair lotions, tonics, specialists' treatments, etc., I came across, in my travels, a Cherokee Indian 'medicine man' who had an elixir that he advertised would grow my hair. Although I had but little faith, I gave it a trial. To my amazement a light fuzz soon appeared. It developed, day by day, into a healthy growth, and ere long my hair was as profuse as in my youthful days.

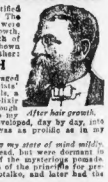
After hair growth.

That I was astonished and happy is expressing my state of mind mildly. Obviously, the hair roots had not been dead, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the fertilizing potency of the mysterious pomade. I negotiated for and came into possession of the ingredients for preparing this mysterious elixir, now called Kotalko, and later took the recipe out into practical form by a chemist.

That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proved."

How YOU May Grow YOUR Hair

It has been proved in very many cases that hair roots did not die as seen when the hair fell out through dandruff, fever, dyspepsia or other ailments, but were merely dormant. Mrs. A. D. Otto reports: "About 8 years ago my hair began to fall out until my scalp was almost entirely bald. I used everything that was recommended, but was always disappointed until at last I came across Kotalko. My bald spots are being covered now; the growth is already about three inches." C. W. Mitchell reports: "I had spots completely bald, which hair is growing since I used Kotalko." Mrs. Mary Kenney reports: "The whole front part of my head was as bald as the palm of my hand for about 15 years. Now my hair is growing all over the place that was bald." Many more splendid reports from satisfied users.



For women's hair.

He seemed the ideal personification of hate and wholesome, save that the flush on his face seemed rather heavier and deeper than the usual healthy color.

"Dad," exclaimed the girl, impulsively, "you certainly are the best-looking thing in all New York I don't think I shall permit you to go walking alone all by yourself any more. Do you hear me?"

As Chaperon

She sprang up lightly, went over and seated herself on the arm of his chair, murmuring close to his face gay little jests, odd, quaint endearments, all sorts of nonsense while she smoothed his hair to her satisfaction, retied his evening tie, patted his lapels, and finally kissed him lightly between his eyebrows, continuing her murmured nonsense all the while:

"I won't have other women looking sideways at you—the hussies! I'm jealous. I shall hereafter walk out with you. Do you hear what I threaten?—you very flighty and deceitful man! Steve is going to chaperon you everywhere you go."

John Cleland's smile altered subtly:

"Not everywhere, Steve."

"Indeed I shall! Every step you take."

"No, dear."

"Why not?"

"Because—there is one rather necessary trip I shall have to make—some day——"

A moment's silence; then her arm around his neck:

"Dad!" she whispered, in breathless remonstrance.

"Yes, dear?"

"Don't you—feel well?"

"Perfectly."

"Then," fiercely, "don't dare hint such things!"

"About the—journey I spoke of?" he asked, smiling.

"Yes! Don't say such a thing! You are not going—until I go, too!"

"If I could postpone the trip on your account——"

"Dad! Do you want to break my heart and kill me by such jokes?"

"There, Steve, I was merely teasing. Men of my age have a poor way of joking, sometimes. I mean to postpone that trip. Indeed, I do, Steve. You're a handful, and I've got to keep hold of you for a long while yet."

Real Grown-up

Jim overheard that much:

"A handful? Rubbish!" he remarked. Send her to bed at nine for the next few years and be careful about her diet and censor her reading matter. That's all Steve needs to become a real grown-up some day."

Stephanie had risen to face the shafts of good-natured sarcasm.

"Suppose," she said, "that I told you I had sent a poem to a certain magazine and that it had been accepted?"

"I'd say very amiably that you are precocious," he replied tormentingly.

"Brute! I did! I sent it!"

"They accepted it?"

"I don't know," she admitted, pink with annoyance; "but it won't surprise me very much if they accept it. Really, Jim, do you think nobody else can write anything worth considering? Do you really believe that you embody all the talent in New York? Do you?" And, to Cleland Senior: "Oh, Dad, isn't he the horrid personification of everything irritatingly masculine? And I'll bet his old novel is perfectly commonplace. I think I'll go up to his room and take a critical glance at it——"

"Hold on, Steve!" he exclaimed—for she was already going. She glanced over her shoulder with a defiant smile, and he sprang up to follow and overtake her.

But Stephanie's legs were long and her feet light and swift, and she was upstirs and inside his room before he caught her, reaching for the sacred manuscript.

"Oh, Jim," she coaxed, beguilingly, "do let me have one little peep at it, there's a dear fellow! Just one little——"

"Not yet, Steve. It isn't in any shape. Wait till it's typed——"

Dying With Curiosity

"—don't care. I can read your writing easily——"

"It's all scored and cross-written and messed up——"

"Please, Jim! I'm simply half dead with curiosity," she admitted. Be an angel brother and let me sit here and hear you read the first chapter—only one little chapter. Wont you?" she pleaded with melting sweetness.

"I'd rather—embarrassed——"

"What! To have your own sister hear what you've written?"

There was a short silence. The word "sister" was meant to be reassuring to both. To use it came instinctively to her as an inspiration, partly because she had vaguely felt that some confirmation of such matter-of-fact relationship would put them a little more freely at their ease with each other.

For they had not been entirely at their ease. Both were subtly aware of that—she had first betrayed it by her offered hand instead of the friendly and sisterly kiss which had been a matter of course until now.

"Come," she said, gaily, "be a good child and read the pretty story to little sister."

She sat down on the edge of his bed; he, already seated at his desk, frowned at the pile of manuscript before him.

"I'd rather talk," he said.

"About what?"

"Anything. Honestly, Steve, I'll let you see it when it's typed. But I rather hate to show anything until it's done—I don't like to have people see the raw edges and the machinery."

"I'm not 'people.' How horrid. Also, it makes a difference when a girl is not only your sister, but also somebody who intends to devote her life to artistic self-expression. You can read your story to that kind of girl, I should hope!"

Too Patronizing

"Haven't you given that up?"

"Given up what?"

"That mania for self-expression, as you call it."

"Of course not."

"What do you think you want to do?" he asked uneasily.

"Jim, you are entirely too patronizing. I don't think I want to do anything, but I know I desire to find some medium for self-expression and embrace it as a profession."

That rather crushed him for a moment. Then:

"There'll be time enough to start that question when you graduate!—"

"It is not a question. I intend to express myself some day. And you might as well reconcile yourself to that idea."

"Suppose you haven't anything worth expressing?"

"Are you teasing?" she flushed slightly.

"Oh, yes, I suppose I am teasing you. But, Steve, neither father nor I want to see you enter any unconventional profession. It's no good for a girl unless she is destined for it by a talent that amounts to genius. If you have that, it ought to show by the time you graduate——"

"You make me simply furious, Jim," she retorted impatiently. These few months at college have taught me something. And, for one thing, I've learned that a girl has exactly as much right as a man to live her own life in her own way, unfettered by worn-out conventions and unhampered by male's critical opinions concerning her behavior."

Greatly Out of Date

"The dickens," he remarked, and whistled softly.

"And, further," she continued warmly, "I am astonished that in this age, when the entire world tacitly admits that woman is man's absolute equal in every respect, that you apparently still harbor old-fashioned, worn-out and silly notions. You are very far out of date, my charming brother."

"What notions?" he demanded.

"Notions that a girl's mission is to go to parties and dance when she doesn't desire to—that a girl had better conform to the uninteresting and stilled laws of the recent past and live her life as an animated clothes-rack, mind her deportment, and do what nice girls do, and marry, and become the mother of numerous offspring which shall be taught to follow in her footsteps and do the same thing all over again, generation after generation —ad nauseam——— Oh, Jim! I'm not going to live out my life that way and be looked after as carefully as a pedigreed Pekinese——"

"For Heaven's sake——"

"For Heaven's sake——yes!—and in God's name, Jim, it is time that a woman's mind was occupied by something besides the question of clothes and husbands and children!"

The boy wrestled softly, stared at her and she looked at him unflinchingly, with her pretty breathless smile of defiance.

"I want to live my own life in my own way. Can't I?" are asked.

"Of course——"

Jim's Ideas

"You say that. But the instant I venture to express a desire for any outlet—for any chance to be myself, express myself, seek the artistic means for self-utterance, then you tell me I am unconventional!"

He was silent.

"Nobody hampers you!" she flashed out. You are free to choose your profession."

"But why do you want a profession, Steve?"

"Why? Because I feel the need of it. Because just ordinary society does not interest me. I prefer Bohemia."

He said:

"There's a lot of stuff talked about studios and atmosphere and 'urge' and genius. Bohemian irresponsibility—and a young girl is apt to get a notion that she, also, experiences the 'cosmic urge' and that 'self-expression' is her middle name. . . . That's all I mean, Steve. You frequently have voiced your desire for a career among the fine arts. Now and then you have condescended to sketch for me your idea of an ideal environment, which appears to be a studio in studio disorder, art produced in large chunks, and 'people worth while' loudly attacking pianos and five o'clock tea!——"

"Jim! You are not nice to me. . . . If I didn't love you with all my heart!——"

"It's because I'm fond of you, too," he explained. "I don't want my sister, all over clay or paint, sitting in a Greenwich village studio, smoking cigarettes and frying sausages for lunch! No! Or I don't want her bullied by an ignorant stage director or leered at by an animal who plays 'opposite,' or insulted by a Semitic manager. Is that very astonishing?"

The girl rose, nervous, excited, but laughing:

Stocks Strong in New York; Money 8%; Market More Active

LABOR WORRIES BIG BUSINESS

Wall Street Sees Easy Defeat of Cox by Making League His Chief Plank

By BROADAN WALL

Reserved U. S. Patent office.

New York, July 20.—Threat of a nation-wide railroad strike, combined with the 9 per cent. renewal rate for money caused great weakness in the stock market early yesterday. The Street had expected a strike, for the anticipation of the Labor Board decision.

There was no short interest outstanding, therefore when the buying failed to materialize, prices simply faded. The selling ran from a point or two up to above four points in some issues. Rails suffered along with the rest, but for the day only a technical decline without any reference to values.

In the afternoon money declined to 8 per cent. and there was a recovery in the market. In many cases the net advances for the day were recorded.

Although the Labor Board decision or railroad wages is not to be announced until today union labor let it be known to-day that it intends to be displeased with it. This exhibit of the spirit of labor worried the business world. Labor's attitude is one that should make investors cautious.

On the other hand the business world was immensely pleased at the decision of candidate Cox to make the League of Nations his chief plank. According to business, men, and particularly those in close touch with the market and therefore in close touch with the management of big enterprises, it will be easy to defeat Cox with such an issue.

Official announcement that the Pan-American will issue ten million of the new securities, convertible into "B" stock, will be made today. This issue is to take care of new oil shipments.

STROMBERG IS THE LEADER

Makes the Largest Gain of the Morning; American Woolen Is Up Three Points

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, there having been a further advance in the second hour. Stromberg was the leader, rising more than five points. American Woolen continued active and more than three. Rails increased their gains. The market was more active than for several days, first-hour transactions totaling more than 100,000 shares. Call loans renewed at 8 per cent. Sterling exchange was lower, opening at 3.83¾, while Continental rates rules a shade higher.

Among strongest issues were Kelly Springfield, Haskell and Barker, American Locomotive, Baldwin, Chicago, Republic Steel, Replogle, Vanadium, Canadian Pacific, Illinois Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Studebaker, Retail Stores, Marine preferred, Mexican Petroleum, Pan American, Industrial Alcohol and U. S. Rubber. They had advanced from one to three points.

MIXED MOVEMENT AT OPENING.

At the opening the price movement was mixed and gains and losses were about balanced. Things were dull and trading quiet. The resumption of yacht racing drew many brokers and bankers away and the things were dull in a general sense around Broad and Wall streets. Besides on the spot availed for official announcement of the wage increase that the Labor Board has awarded rail workers. After a few minutes of hesitation security prices went up and before the exchange had been open half an hour the market was strong. There was improvement in all kinds of stocks. Most gains were from fractions to around a point, but Stromberg and American Woolen commons advanced three points within thirty minutes. Strongest rails were Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific and Reading. Crucible and Replogle made the best showing among steels. Motors had a weak start, but more than recovered losses. Oils were firm, but unusually quiet. Liberty bonds lost small gains quickly.

EFFECT OF WAGE AWARD.

As far as stocks were concerned the rail wage award met with favorable response on the part of the public, but according approximately to the cost of operating roads, but employes have been granted on the whole less than half their maximum demand. According to statements by labor leaders of the offer by the Labor Board will be rejected and a national railway strike called for failure. This would cause business and industrial chaos and the result of such a struggle as would result cannot be foretold. The speculative course of stocks today is a reflection of Wall Street rather than public opinion.

The market was never more professional than to-day. Outsiders have little at stake in securities at this moment aside from investments. As regards the rates increases to be granted carriers by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the belief prevalence is no more liberal than wage increases a slump in rail securities may be expected.

Corporation financing broke all records as to amount during the first half of this year, the total of new securities marketed being $2,117,646,470, as compared with $1,124,475,325 for the corresponding period in 1919. The high record for new financing for a year was established in 1918, but the aggregate for the full twelve months was but $2,944,383,000.

LOCAL TRADING VERY QUIET

Prices Move Irregularly on the Boston Exchange; Better Tone on the Curb

Prices ruled lower on the Boston exchange when trading was resumed today, and there was a slight improvement during the first hour, the local market responding to the firmer tone in New York. By midmorning it was steady, but losses exceeded gains, reviewing the reaction of yesterday, and trading was dull as it has averaged of late. Attendance at commission houses was meagre and there was no interest in stocks displayed by the public. United Fruit gained two points and Utah Copper and other initial gains were fractional. Among rails, which were inactive, Boston & Maine was lower and New Haven was higher.

Packing issues seemed to have a better tone. Swift & Company were traded in and Gray & Davis was the only issue of its class to get any attention. Others ruled two points and International Cement one on first transactions.

Among issues to recede fractionally were Boston Elevated, Boston & Maine, Chicago, Milwaukee & North Butte, National Leather, Libby, Bigheart and Gray & Davis.

Small gains were made by New Haven, United Shoe, Greenfield Tap, Swift & Co., Utah Oil, Criterion, Pacific Mills and Eastern Steamship.

BETTER TONE TO CURB.

The Curb showed more life at the start than it has displayed in several days and it had a better tone. It was narrow as regards range, however. Oil issues were the most active. Among those to advance at once were Salt Creek, 11 cents; Eureka, Daddy, Eureka, and U. S. Steamship. Weak ones were Manhattan, Porcupine Premier and Utah Apex, the most active in early trading were Tip Top, Madonna, Mutual, Eureka and Premier.

At the end of an hour Albany was up 10 cents at 70, Bagdad 2 points at 25 cents, Mutual 2 cents at 9 cents and Porcupine Premier 2 cents at 6 cents. Losses included Tip Top 1 cent at 10 cents and Seven Metals 1 cent at 11 cents. Eureka did not lost a small gain and Madonna had recovered a small loss.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

The following corporations have rendered notifications of capital increases: New England Fuse & Manufacturing Co., $1,000,000 to $1,500,000; Hub Trust Co., from $200,000 to $500,000; Liberty Trust Co., from $500,000 to $1,000,000; Foss & Co., Inc., from $1,000,000 to $1,250,000.

Dover, Delaware, dispatch states that the New England Marine Corporation has changed its name to the Eastern Steamship Lines. Western Steamship Co., of Boston and has increased its capital from $100,000 to $10,500,000.

It is rumored in New York that directors of the Wickwire Spencer Steel Corporation are reported to be considering the inauguration of a dividend on the 6,200,000 Class A stock outstanding of $5 per value.

The value of the sugar which the Punta Alegre Sugar Co. still holds is estimated at current market prices at approximately $2,200,000.

Calumet copper production for Monawk was 754,906 pounds against 1,007,875 in the corresponding 1919 month, and that of Wolverine was 227,653 against 335,618.

The New York Curb has notified the Commission of Corporations of its intentions to increase its capital from $100,000 to $500,000.

The Michigan Copper Mining reports output for June at 130,995 pounds against 117,934 pounds in May and 161,000 in June, 1919.

MASSACHUSETTS TAXES MUST BE ADVANCED

An advance of taxation in this State is expected, and Tax Commissioner Trefry says high rates are inevitable when people spend too much money He said:

"We have been trying for three years to find additional sources of revenue, but thus far have been unsuccessful, for the ground has been thoroughly covered already. We are sending out our supervisors this year on the same plan as before to see that turns of the values of corporation property are made to us at times in figures higher than those fixed by local assessors. Where the assessors have valued the property at less the supervisors have raised the valuation. There is no doubt that a large sum must be raised by the different governments in some way and people who have been spending money must know that they must pay taxes accordingly."

Foreign Inquiry for Copper

It is reported that foreigners are making inquiries in this market for copper, but there has not been much change in domestic conditions. The market is believed to be in better shape, however. Much of the low-priced metal has been disposed of and the reluctance of big sellers to consent to accept last quarter orders in the current prices has ceased. They are now able to command a higher figure later. They are quoting 19 cents a pound for July and August delivery and taking some September business at the price. July is quoted at 18¾ cents a pound and August 18¾ in the "outside" market.

Corporation Earnings

The Phillips Petroleum Co. reports for the second 1920 quarter gross income from crude oil, gas and casoline sales of $1,000,000, operating and general expenses including interest, depreciation and depletion of $1,000,000 and net income of $1,500,000.

The profit of the International Mercantile Marine Co. for 1919, after taxes and other charges, amounted to $17,749,932, as compared with $12,941,737 in the preceding year. After deducting $4,883,816 for dividends on preferred, the surplus was $12,866,116, equal to $21.45 a share earned on the $53,725,300 common stock against $16.08 a share on $50,000,000 in 1918. Gross sales by the American Wholesale Corporation for the year ended June 30, 1920, were $16,000,000, compared to $7,595,000, with $2,311,655 in June of last year, an increase of $28,748 or 1.26 per cent. Net profits for six months totaled $10,049,000, against $10,959,213 in the corresponding six months last year, an increase of $5,067,857, or 50.34 per cent.

For 1919 the El Paso & Southwestern, controlled by the Southern Pacific, reports a net income of $8,226,000, equivalent to $17.59 a share on $21,000,000 stock, against $5,521,000 or $14.27 a share in 1918.

CHARGES 'EL' IS TRICKING CITY

Councillor Moriarty Says Plan Is to Turn Road Back After Public Purse Improves It

Charges that the trustees of the Boston Elevated are improving the road at the expense of the riding public and the City of Boston, with the intention of turning back to the stockholders the best street railroad in the country, were made by President James T. Moriarty before the City Council.

Moriarty was speaking in opposition to the plans of the company in the three-family houses on the land which the company proposes to use.

"The alternative the company has is to ride across the street from Mayor Peters, and I am told by one of the trustees that that is what it is prepared to do.

Moriarty declared that sixteen garages for pleasure cars are being built by the road, "the base as any pleasure cars as the city of Boston," he said in comment.

"The trustees are making vast improvements in the road at the expense of the riding public, and when the rate case comes through the city of Boston has to pay the bills. The trustees intend to turn back to the stockholders the best street railroad in the country when the public control agreement expires.

"So if it is taken over in public ownership the public will have to pay again for the improvements now being made."

Moriarty's opposition to turning over any portion of the reservation to the company was so stiff that the plan was tabled until the next meeting.

Increased Kennecott Output

The Kennecott Copper Co. has been increasing its output this year. June production being 10,129,000 pounds, the largest for 1920 to date. This exceeds the output for any month in 1919, and compares with 7,752,000 pounds for January last.

California's Oil Output

The crude oil output of California last month amounted to 373,068 barrels, according to the Standard Oil Bulletin. Stocks decreased 1,220,994 barrels to total holdings of 25,370,502 barrels, as compared with 27,591,496. The thirty-six new wells were completed. On

Farmers Daily Losing Thousands by Tieup

Washington, July 20.—"The railroad tangle with its resulting tie-up in grain movement, is costing the farmers of this country hundreds of thousands of dollars daily," said J. H. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, in a statement issued here.

Howard declared that with 25 per cent. of last year's crop still in local elevators and a "totally inadequate movement of the new crop," farmers are suffering heavily from breaches of contracts "excessive storage rates and high interest charges."

BIG HOUSES HELPED BY BANKING CREDITORS

The Boston News Bureau says that while in many lines of business retail prices are holding close to top figures, it is true, in some instances at least, that the manufacturers are having tough sledding. This publication states:

"The last in the past four or five days several large New York houses identified with the fur and clothing industry have been taken in hand by banking creditors who have undertaken to finance further large sums against available merchandise. A big fur house last week was reported to be in need of several millions.

"Manufacturers have overstayed their market and find themselves loaded with high priced goods. The result is that it is inevitable that at the end of the long period of high prices, regardless of reasons, prices some dealers should be caught. Some of these experts say that the public has compromise profits while the going was good would only be too glad to pay high prices in the end.

"The public finds its spending money creating low the credit strain and congested transportation facilities. Large banks such as always the weather, and all other lines of business cannot be induced to run on a falling market."

HARBOR TRIP FOR UNION DELEGATES

The convention of the international Stereotypers and Electrotypers Union of North America is being held at the Hotel Bellevue. Members of Boston Stereotypers' Union, No. 2, and Electrotypers' Union, No. 11, are acting as hosts. The convention, which ends Friday, is in charge of a committee of which William Beckett, president of the Boston Stereotypers Union is chairman; Martin J. Casey, president of the Boston Electrotypers Union, vice chairman, and A. H. McKenzie, of the recording and corresponding secretary of the Boston Stereotypers, secretary-treasurer. The program for today included a harbor trip in the afternoon and evening and a picnic at Nantasket

United States Rubber Company

Ten-Year Seven and One-half Per Cent. Secured Gold Notes

Due August 1, 1930

Interest payable February 1 and August 1. Coupon notes in denominations of $1,000 and $500 with privilege of registration as to principal. Principal and interest payable in Gold without deduction for any taxes which the Company, or the Trustee may be required to pay, or retain therefrom, other than Federal Income Taxes in excess of 2% per annum.

Samuel P. Colt, Esq., Chairman of the Board of the United States Rubber Company, in a letter dated July 16, 1920, writes, in part, as follows:

The Notes are to be secured by the deposit and pledge with the United States Mortgage & Trust Company, as Trustee of the Trust Indenture under which the Notes will be issued, of $25,000,000, face value, United States Rubber Company First and Refunding Mortgage 6% Gold Bonds, due January 1, 1947.

The United States Rubber Company directly or through its Subsidiaries is engaged in the manufacture of Rubber Footwear of all kinds, Pneumatic and Solid Rubber Tires and Tubes for automobiles, trucks and other vehicles, Mechanical Goods and Druggist Sundries, Insulated Wire and practically all other goods that are made from India Rubber, there being over 50 mills in operation, situated in the United States and Canada.

The business of the United States Rubber Company is well balanced, the product of footwear and of tires being about equal, while the mechanical goods, druggists' sundries and other miscellaneous products, make up substantially another third.

The Company owns the largest Rubber Plantations in the world from which it obtains direct a substantial part of its crude rubber requirements. The product of such plantations is rapidly increasing.

In order to provide for the constant and rapidly increasing demand for its product of automobile truck and passenger car tires, the Company commenced in the early part of 1919 a substantial expansion of its tire manufacturing plants both in the United States and in Canada. This expansion includes important developments at each of the Company's five tire plants, and it is confidently expected that these improvements will more than double the productive capacity of the tire plants by the middle of next year. The demand for the Company's tires vastly exceeds not only the existing capacity but even the enlarged capacity after the proposed increase in production. All expansions and improvements have been made with a view to effecting every economy in manufacture and at the same maintaining the highest possible quality of the product.

The proceeds of this sale of Notes, with the current surplus earnings, will give the Company sufficient funds for the completion of the plant extensions now in progress at Detroit, Hartford, Providence and Indianapolis for the increase of the Company's tire production.

The total sales of the Company and its Subsidiary Companies for the last three years have been:

1917.....$176,159,694
1918.....$215,

PLANS TO HELP WOMEN IN LAW

Mrs. Brady, New Assistant District Attorney, Says Conciliation Is Her Main Idea

The first woman assistant district attorney in New England will begin her new duties August 1.

She is Mrs. M. Frances Brady, whom District Attorney Tuttle of Middlesex county, has just invited to be assistant district attorney in his office. Mrs. Brady, in her private office, at No. 101 Tremont street, the day of announcing assent in her life, was quite calm about her new honor though — perhaps — just a little pleased. The talk, naturally, turned to the kind of duties Mrs. Brady will take up, as woman district attorney.

PREFERS CONCILIATION WORK.

"Cases with women, work with children; domestic relations, these are, I believe, my new work in Middlesex County," she explained. "It is the same kind of work I have in my private practice; the same kind of work that I believe the woman lawyer is best fitted for.

"There are many times when to bring a case to court is to unveil delicate relationships, and to spread to the public gaze that which should never go beyond the confidential talk of client with attorney. That is why I prefer work outside. Women will have such great respect for the remedial kindlinesss of the law that I like to see and feel them adjusted, and problems smoothed out by conference, arbitration and mutual concessions. And that is what I hope to work will be."

Now, apart from being a kindly woman, firm, upstanding, of excellent physique, keen, clear minded, and good to look upon, Mrs. Brady is a kindly mother. Her daughter, Rosamond Brady, is a young lady of twenty-one, who has made physical education her profession.

SUCCESS BY HARD WORK.

Any the pleasant lady for the secret of her success, and she will draw the line. She will not talk, but the listener finds that secret. It is hard work.

Her vocation? Amateur theatricals. That's what she really delights to play at. "But I have to steal the hours for those," she confesses. At the Professional Woman's Club she has played in many, however. And she brings a keen appreciation of her work, notwithstanding that much of it has concerned unhappiness in marriage.

"There still are more happy marriages than unhappy," says she, "and so we will just keep on hoping."

The new assistant district attorney is sane and wholesome and has all her wits about her. And when it comes to clubs, she belongs to the City Club, the Massachusetts Association of Women Lawyers, the Watertown Equal Suffrage League and the Professional Woman's Club.

RESCUE GIRL 8 DAYS IN WOODS

Daughter of Whitman Man Lived on Berries; Feared Scolding by Father

Whitman, July 20.—Following eight days and nights of terror in the woods, Ellen B. Reed, aged fifteen, was rescued, half fainting from exposure and starvation, from the brush at Oldham Pond, Pembroke, by her father, William A. Reed of Quincy street, and Chief of Police Phinney.

The girl, whose clothing was torn to shreds and who was severely scratched by beating her way through the brush, had had nothing to eat but berries since the first day of her disappearance, Sunday, July 11. A scolding from her father because she attended too many moving picture shows caused her to run away, the girl said.

Fearing punishment, she decided to cut her hair and seek employment and become self-supporting. Having insufficient money she climbed the main in the woods the first night and seek employment the next day, but in the condition that she found herself after a night in the woods she was afraid to make known her plight or ask for work for fear of being arrested or taken home to face her father.

After a second night she did not dare to go near any village and only heard anyone in the vicinity she hid from them, meanwhile living on berries and herbs. A search for her was scrape pine needles together and make herself as comfortable as possible.

Campers on the shore of Oldham Pond, first to see the girl, heard her wading through the woods and recalling that a girl answering her description was reported missing, they notified Chief of Police Phinney of Whitman.

DORCHESTER MAN DIES AFTER 25-FOOT FALL

Herbert Rand, fifty-five years old, married, of No. 3 Caurios street, Dorchester, was pronounced dead upon arrival at the Haymarket Relief Station, where he was taken after he slipped and fell from the roof of a shed to the ground, a distance of twenty-five feet. Rand was at work at the American Tool Company, No. 576 Albany street, South End, on the roof of the shed recently erected by the He struck on the back of his head when he hit the ground.

COUNCIL SEEKS MORE CHARLES ST. AUTO SPACE

The City Council passed an order calling for the taking of a section of land on the Charles street river side of Boston Common for auto parking purposes. City Councilman Henry L. Hagan introduced the order which passed without opposition.

SUICIDE REMOVES ALL TRACES OF IDENTITY

Portsmouth, N. H., July 20.—Police are investigating what is believed to have been a suicide of an Atlantic shipyard workman from the Portsmouth bridge. A coat and hat were found on the bridge with an unsigned note saying: "Whoever finds this will know I am sick of life when I lose my business and this is the quickest way to end it all." There was a letter to his mother and several pay envelopes with all identifications signs removed.

NEW ENGLAND MEN FAVOR EXPRESS CONSOLIDATION

Washington, July 20.—Carriers and shippers appeared today before Examiner Butler of the Interstate Commerce Commission to urge continuance of the consolidation of the express companies, as effected during the railroad administration.

Alfred Thom, Jr., representing the railway executives, stated that 67 railroads had approved of continuance of the consolidation and but 14 had opposed it.

J. H. Beek, representing the National Traffic League, the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the New England Traffic League, stated that his clients approved consolidation although they do not favor a monopoly, but they realize the most efficient service can be secured through consolidation.

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTRESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

Why California Objects to Being Japanese Colony

If the people of California do not wish to become a Japanese colony, as Korea has become and as Hawaii is becoming, surely it is within their right to take steps to prevent it.

They intend next November to vote on a proposal to prevent the rapidly multiplying Japanese from either owning or leasing California land.

This is another way of saying that they do not want Japanese coolie labor fastened in great numbers upon their soil. They have found by sad experience that where this labor locates native white labor goes. Since California is a part of the United States and a national domicile of the white race, it clearly is entitled to protect the white race against unwelcome alien encroachments.

We may be sure that if conditions were reversed and a rapidly growing number of white Americans should try to settle in Japan, crowding out native Japanese, the people of Japan would show the same feeling which now animates Californians.

No question of inferiority or superiority is necessarily involved—only the question of natural incompatibility.

As permanent neighbors economically competitive one with another the white race and the yellow race do not get on well—that is all there is to it.

Such being the fact, it is for the best interest of both that they should be separated by a reasonable distance.

We have no warrant to insist upon colonizing Japan, and by precisely the same token Japan has no warrant for expecting white Californians to permit their State to become the home of unwelcome Japanese.

No permanent benefit can be gained for either nation by attempting to disguise this plain truth in diplomatic palaver.

The fact itself is a fundamental of human nature. It is only an accident of geography that it happens now to be located on our western coast. If the site of attempted Japanese colonizing were on our eastern coast or in the heart of our Mississippi valley the fact would be the same.

Hence the attempts of Japanese propagandists like the Rev. Sidney L. Gulick to make it appear that California's defensive measures represent simply cheap politics are themselves merely cheap claptrap.

No Californian, no American, has any objection to the Japanese who stay on Japanese soil or on soil adjacent to Japan where their presence is welcome.

But no American who cares at all for the best interests of his own country wants to see another race problem embedded as a cancer in its vitals.

As for the theory that Japanese susceptibilities are too sensitive to make it advisable for the United States to state its position in this matter frankly, it strikes us that this is a very poor theory.

Other white peoples have been frank in the same matter, notably Australia and Canada. And Japanese susceptibilities have survived the shock, while Japanese statesmanship has beeen nimble in adjusting its actions to the facts.

After all, facts determine. The fact that California will not tolerate, is its alienation as an American State. This position of California would be the position of any other American State similarly menaced. It is the position of all Americans acquainted with the facts. It will be the position of the American government just as soon as we have an administration at Washington loyal and responsive to American interests.

Objects That Add Most to the Satisfactions of Life

It is the fashion of the supercilious to sneer at the phonograph and the mechanical piano. There is no field where the snob rages more unchecked than the field of art.

People who do not know anything else about music and pictures or letters know how to turn up their noses. They forget that the act of all acts of which the human mind is capable, requiring the least brains and the minimum of culture, is ridicule.

As a matter of fact, the innumerable discs of talking machines flying over the land like so many Ezekiel wheels are the most tremendous assets in developing musical taste. For taste, or culture, or whatever you call maturity and sophistication in the finer arts of life, is entirely a matter of saturation.

You cannot learn to judge pictures by attending lectures and listening to some one tell you what to think. The only way is to go to the galleries or private collections where the masterpieces are and look at them, and go again and again. You like what you know. And familiarity weeds out the commonplace and breeds the love of perfection.

As life becomes stabilized we turn more and more to the world of beauty for our satisfactions. And in this turning of the national soul away from the earth toward the sun, canned music has no inconsiderable part.

Democracy has a soul as well as a system. Democracy has a spiritual purpose; it is not organized altogether for the purpose of giving to every man a cow and an acre. And the spiritual purpose of Democracy's soul is to spread the opportunity for the best things to all of the people.

In this sense the truest culture and the most wholesome is not to carve grotesque statues for the Summer gardens of millionaires or the dim interiors of art galleries, but to make the surroundings of the common people beautiful.

Monarchy serves God by exalting the king. Democracy serves God by exalting the people.

Whoever, then, will make beautiful chairs, tables, bedsteads, carpets, plates, tea cups, houses, shops and other things that have to do with the daily life of the people, whoever will accustom them to beauty and good taste, is the truest artist.

And exactly so the makers of canned music. If they make it well and truly, they are honest servants of humanity and worthy of their reward.

More Truth Than Poetry

Elysian Fields

By S. E. KISER

I HAVE no wish to be a king, for kings, it seems, have lost
Their popularitec;
I would not care to be a thing maintained at public cost.
No jeweled crown for me!
Nor have I any wish at all to run for President,
Waylaid at ever turn,
Then, beaten badly in the Fall, left sulking in my tent
And causing no concern.

I'VE no ambition to command where money is supreme
And nothing else inspires;
The millionaire, I understand, is much inclined to dream
Of brimstone fumes and fires;
I'm glad I don't collect the rent that hard-worked people pay.
I'd hate myself, indeed,
If always, everywhere I went, my fellow men would say
That I was full of greed.

But do not let yourself suppose that I am satisfied
To be obscure, unknown;
I have a secret I'll disclose—I'll whisper it aside.
Between ourselves alone:
I'd like to be more handsome than Apollo at his best,
And, having winning ways,
Find solace as the only man where ladies looked for rest
Through Summer holidays.

Letters to the Editor

Silence of Johnson

Editor Boston American:

Being a constant reader of the Boston American, I would appreciate very much if you would explain the silence of Hiram Johnson. No money is required to be in the presidential race. What is our country coming to? Why are there so many discontented? There are perhaps more than we think that are ready to support Johnson of the five million ex-service men.

A. A. R.

Troops in Germany

Editor Boston American:

In opposition to the article published in a recent issue of the American on the withdrawal of American troops from Germany and the statement that the German people have not had a decent show, I would like to say this: American troops under the American flag, no matter where placed in the world, stand for order and justice and for furthering the cause of humanity. The United States government, in conjunction with the allies, should understand the situation far better than the average citizen of this country. Suffice it to say that the condition of affairs which makes it necessary to keep an armed force in conquered territory is lamentable. But whose fault is it that troops are not withdrawn? No one but Germany is to blame. She has in absolutely no respect shown herself as fitting to remain free and unobserved.

Further, American troops are stationed on conquered territory, according to the best judgment of our generals and those of our allies. The distress of the German people is not so great that it prevents them from carrying on civil war and as much as possible under cover keeping their military power intact. Germany is not the poor downtrodden country some would have her to be.

Finally it seems imperative that every American should realize that as soon as affairs in Europe become settled and the leaders realize this, troops will be at once withdrawn.

NARRAGANSETT PIER.
AND THE first.
I HAVEN'T yet seen.
AND THE second.
I AM here now.
AND I'M disappointed.
BECAUSE THE pier.
THAT I had pictured.
RUNNING FAR out.
AND INTO the sea.
AND BRILLIANTLY lighted.
ISN'T HERE at all.
AND A Greek.

SAYS SO far as he knows.
THERE NEVER was a pier.
AND SO it comes.

THINGS IN GENERAL

Seventh Day; Eating Glass; A "Black Army"

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

Temple Israel in New York sells its religious building to the Seventh Day Adventists, a church which believes, as Jews do, that Saturday, seventh day of the week, is the day on which the Lord rested, NOT Sunday, first day of the week.

For a while Jews and Seventh Day Adventists will both use the building, Christian and Jewish prayers going through the same roof. That is an improvement on ancient conditions when Christians went into a Jewish synagogue only to murder the congregation.

It is difficult now to believe the sixth or seventh day Sabbath question could cost so much bitterness and thousands of lives. For centuries people understood little about leap year, and with all the calendars, Jewish, Roman, Persian, Christian and others, nobody can tell just exactly what day he is celebrating, especially when you go back as far as the seventh day after the world started. For all we know, the Lord may have rested on what we call Thursday, in which case we are all mistaken, so why quarrel about it?

A chauffeur murdered the woman who employed him, then shot himself. It is a duty to emphasize the fact that the unfortunate woman died defending herself against attack. The ancient dreadful law "visiting the iniquities of the father upon the children" is bad enough, but most horribly unjust when "mother" is substituted for "father" in the text.

Apart from the culminating crime, the life of the dead chauffeur shows signs of an unbalanced mind. Companions of the chauffeur testify to many interesting things concerning him, including one unusual accomplishment. He would order whiskey in a thin glass, drink the whiskey, then eat the glass.

Prohibitionists will observe that from the day the law compelled him to give up whiskey he automatically gave up eating glass. Nobody ever saw him or any one drink a glass of water and then eat the glass. A strong argument for prohibition.

Germany was able, it appears, to obtain modified conditions from the allies as regards payment for coal, by pointing to the army of 800,000 men that would rebel if conditions were made too hard. It wasn't the Kaiser's kind of army, with helmets, swords and brass bands, but the "black army of the coal mines," 800,000 men with picks and shovels.

The Germans said to Lloyd George, "You know perfectly well that you cannot make YOUR miners work if they don't want to. And we can't make ours work if they don't want to. Therefore ask for something that the 'black army' will be willing to give."

If the government of Germany had thought more about this working army, less about its army with fifes and drums, a few years ago, Germany would be in better shape now.

If two partners, quarreling in their china shop, saw a bull come in, head down, tail up, the partners would stop quarreling to think about the bull and the china.

Russia is the bull in the European china shop; the nations over there have been quarreling and cutting each other's throat industriously for some time. But, according to Universal Service, Russia, winning all her fights and menacing all, may force the European nations into peace and thoughtfulness. Two hundred and fifty million people, believing that they have discovered perfection and determined to make everybody else admit it, are not to be trifled with. In a flood, wild animals, with the waters roaring around them, forget to fight each other. The Bolshevist flood from the northeast is making the wild animals of Europe much tamer.

Imports are more important to a nation than exports. To see a farmer bringing in a grand piano, new automobile and a carload of furniture means prosperity. To see him shipping out the products that his children ought to have isn't prosperity. This country emphasizes its exports too much. The best kind of import goods might have been seen at Ellis Island two days ago. It was a family from Holland, father, mother, eight children, all healthy, intelligent, eager "to get a small farm and get to work."

The best news for this country is that immigration is now pouring in to build up the country in the future, as immigrants have built it in the past. Fathers, mothers and children, actually anxious TO WORK, are what this country needs. Of people anxious NOT to work, we have an abundance.

Beware, especially after a great war, of biting off more than you can chew, swallow and digest.

This applies to men gambling in Wall Street, gambling in real estate, or trying to make their industrial operations as big as their imaginations.

It applies even to a powerful empire like Great Britain, hastily swallowing the German colonies plus Mesopotamia and Persia, with national debts, labor troubles and other problems at home still unsolved.

An intelligent correspondent writes earnestly of peril to the empire because of the threatening labor situation at home.

The English possess and use with great skill a large part of the world's intelligence.

They have real statesmen, keen diplomats that some other countries lack. Among them average dullness in the middle and lower classes is more than made up by exceptional intelligence and devotion to national duty at the top.

But many observers believe that, for all her ability, Great Britain is becoming top heavy.

"The Lord arranges it so that trees do not grow into the heavens," is a sound proverb.

When you dig into the earth's ancient strata you find huge monsters, dinosaurs and others, that proved too big for safe, comfortable life on this planet, and so died out. You find the same overgrowth when you read the ancient history of Persia and Rome.

Future generations will find the same conditions probably when they come to read what to them will be "ancient history" of the empire with the flag forever floating in the sun.

Not enemies abroad, but labor and economic conditions at home, will make that flag do its flying in specialized territory.

A wise farmer said: "I want only as much land as I myself can personally and thoroughly cover EVERY DAY."

Wise governments would say the same.
